MEXICAN COURT DECISION BRINGS RECOGNITION NEAR

Supreme Tribunal's Interpretation of Article 27 of Constitution Removes Confiscatory Effect on Foreign Property Rights Legitimately Acquired—Oil Lands Principally Affected.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, July 7.—The recent decision of the Mexican supreme court definitely and completely establishes the fact that Article 27, of the Mexican constitution cannot be given a retroactive or confiscatory effect, according to an official announcement from the Mexican foreign office made public at the Mexican embassy here today.

The opinion was rendered on May 12, being the fifth of this nature, the statement continues:

"Juridic basis has been established which shall serve in the future as a basis for interpretation of the law."

For nearly two months the state department has awaited the text of this supreme court decision. Officials freely admit it may have an important effect upon future relations between Mexico and the United States and particularly upon the question of recognition of the Obregon government. Pending an opportunity to study carefully the exact nature and scope of the decision, however, they decline to predict it will be the means of bringing about a resumption of diplomatic relations.

Should the decision prove as comprehensive and definite as the Mexican foreign office statement would indicate, there is little doubt that the greatest obstacle to recognition will have been removed.

In various communications exchanged with the Obregon government, Secretary of State Hughes had made it plain there can be no recognition of the Mexican government until adequate guarantees are given that American rights, legitimately acquired, will be respected, and has indicated that until competent authority has spoken to the contrary, Article 27, of the constitution of 1917, must be regarded as menacing such interests. The Mexican supreme court is admittedly such a competent authority.

The foreign office statement made public today is under the caption "Article 27 of the Constitution has no Retroactive Effect." A translation of the statement follows:

"Under date of May 12, 1922, magistrates of the supreme court considered certain amparos (prayers for protection), filed before the said high judicial body against acts of the executive power of the republic, and of the department of industry and commerce, these amparos relating to the exploitation of subsoil products in the national petroleum zones.

"The supreme court weighed favorably the requests for protection, indicating that the court felt it had a clear and definite jurisprudence upon the non-retroactivity of Article 27 of the constitution and denied to that article all confiscatory effect.

"In the discussion which ensued, they arrived at the full conviction that Article 27 of our constitution could not invalidate interests created prior to the adoption of the said Magna Charta, either through its text or through its fundamental spirit. On the contrary, the article referred to, far from pretending it should be applied retroactively, in its fourth paragraph, asserts with absolute precision that this effect should not be given to it.

"Five requests for amparo or protection having been granted by the supreme court, being those filed by the Tamiahua Petroleum Company, a juridic basis has been established which shall serve in the future as a basis for interpretation of the law in cases which, like those decided, fall inside the constitutional precept referred to. These conclusions have been adopted by our highest tribunal in order to signify its respect for subsoil property rights."

CHARGE STRIKERS WITH PLOT TO DESTROY CARS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Chicago, July 7.—A plot to burn hundreds of freight cars of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad in the Chicago manufacturing district, was charged today by J. C. Molter, chief special agent for the road, after flames had partly wrecked one of a string of cars standing on a siding. Prompt arrival of the firemen prevented a spread of the fire.

"It's the work of strikers or sympathizers," Molter said. "If the fire had not been promptly checked, it would have spread to hundreds of cars and the loss would have been appalling."

Fire Captain Hubert Classen told the police he found evidence of oil having been poured over rubbish in the car.

HOOVER AGAIN SHOWS HIS CLASS AT HENLEY

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Henley, England, July 7.—Walter Hoover, of the Duluth Boat Club, the American single sculls champion, gave another impressive exhibition today in winning his second heat of the Diamond Sculls from Baynes, the Australian. Hoover won in 9 minutes 41 twenty-five seconds, clipping almost a minute from the time he made yesterday in disposing of Tweed.

INDUSTRY FEELING COAL SHORTAGE

Scarcity in New England and Northwest To Spur Government To Act—Hard Coal Partisans Continue Conferences.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, July 7.—With big industries in many parts of the country running headlong into a coal shortage resulting from the mine strike, cabinet officials predicted today that President Harding could lose no time upon his return to Washington, to take drastic steps leading to an immediate resumption of mining operations.

Reports to the department of commerce describe severe fuel shortages in New England and the northwest, while from other sections comes information which convinces those in touch with the industrial situation that it will be necessary for the federal government to step into the breach between the operators and miners with more force than has characterized previous efforts to end the strike.

One member of the cabinet said President Harding would have a new offer to make to the bituminous section of the national coal conference when it resumed its deliberations on Monday, but he declined today to disclose the terms of this proposal.

It was pointed out, however, in administration and congressional circles that there are only two ways to end the strike now open to the government. These are: (1)—Arbitration, or (2) the taking over of the mines.

While the miners continued informal conversations with respect to the government strike-ending efforts, the anthracite operators and miners again went into secret session to resume their still unfruitful wage negotiations.

FATHER NEUMANN SAILS SATURDAY

Thursday Evening The Members Of St. Peter's Parish Tendered Him a Farewell At The School Grounds—Pleasing Program Rendered.

The Rev. John P. Neumann of St. Peter's Church on Wurts street who sails Saturday for a three months' tour of Europe in an effort to regain his health, was tendered a farewell Thursday evening by the members of the parish at the school grounds.

The new playground in the rear of the school and fronting on Broadway was brilliantly illuminated and gay with bunting and decorations and throughout the evening John Bott's orchestra rendered a fine musical program, and at the close of the program dancing was enjoyed.

Louis Stock spoke in behalf of the members of the parish and conveyed to Father Neumann the best wishes of his host of friends and the members of the parish.

A finely sung bass solo "Dry Those Tears" was rendered by Cornelius Heitzman, and was followed by an aesthetic dance by the Misses Carter. "The Little White Cot in the Lane" was delightfully sung by John Raible, and was followed by a balancing stunt by Aaron Steinhilber and his young daughter. Another pleasing feature of the program was a solo by the Rev. J. D. Ostermann who sang "Tommy Boy."

The address of the evening was delivered by the Rev. Edward Higgins of Rosendale, who is known as one of the wittiest speakers in this vicinity. In response Father Neumann spoke feelingly of the regard and esteem that had been shown him by members of the parish, and said that while loath to leave them he hoped to return much improved in health and strength.

The farewell address in behalf of the parish was delivered by Maurice Rice.

Fully fifteen hundred gathered at the school grounds that evening to bid farewell to Father Neumann.

COURT RULES CENSOR CAN CONTROL MOVIE NEWS REELS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, July 7.—A news movie reel is not entitled to the immunity from censorship guaranteed by the constitution to newspapers, the appellate division of the supreme court decided today.

The case was carried to the court by the Pathe Film Exchange in appealing from a ruling by the state motion picture commission deleting from one of the reels a picture of a bathing girl. The commission contended that the picture was immoral.

TROOPS MOBILIZE IN SHOP STRIKE

Seven Illinois Guard Companies at Armories as Result of Assaults by Strikers on Guards and Homes of Workers Who Stuck to Jobs.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Chicago, July 7.—A tense situation exists in Chicago and several other sections of Illinois today as a result of disturbances growing out of the strike of railway shopmen. Seven companies of the Illinois National Guard are mobilized in down-state armories, ready for strike duty.

The most serious situation, apparently, has developed at Decatur where an outbreak is reported to be threatening. Two guards at the Wabash Railroad shops at Decatur were beaten yesterday and more trouble is feared as a result of the attempts of the Wabash shops to operate with strike-breakers.

The order for mobilization of state troops, according to General Carlos Black, the adjutant general, was issued as a precautionary measure after reports of the Decatur situation had been received. The troops have been ordered to mobilize at their armories and be ready for instant service if needed.

Cavalry troops at Springfield and Urbana; and infantry companies at Decatur, Danville, Champaign and Dolovan and the headquarters company at Decatur, have been ordered mobilized.

The trouble at Decatur, according to reports here, arose when two shop guards attempted to prevent strikers from talking with strike-breakers whom they were seeking to dissuade from working. A. D. Wilson and H. L. Cook, the guards, were beaten but were not seriously hurt.

Extra police details were on guard in Chicago today as the result of attempts of a mob of 1,500 striking shopmen, led by more than thirty women, to destroy the homes of two Illinois Central Railway employes who had refused to join in the strike.

At the home of Theodore Haas, an inspector in the safety appliance division, every window in the house was broken by missiles hurled by the mob and an attempt to set fire to the dwelling was made.

From the Haas home, the strikers went to the residence of John Gabel. There Mrs. Gabel, warned of their approach, met them with levelled revolver and promised to shoot the first person who threw a stone. She held the mob at bay for twenty minutes, until the police arrived.

ASHOKAN ROAD TRAFFIC GREATEST THIS FOURTH

West Hurley Man Making Accurate Auto Statistics.

J. B. Hanney, a former justice of the peace in the town of Hurley, who is a shoemaker with a shop at West Hurley next door to the post office, for the past seven years has kept a daily count of automobiles passing on the Ashokan Boulevard from early morning until late at night. He has a counting machine lying on his work bench when he is at work on which he keeps tally. For the first five days of July this year automobiles that passed his shop numbered as follows: July 1, 2,710; July 2, 1,850; July 3, 1,000; July 4, 3,613; July 5, 2,480. The number for July 4 this year breaks the record for any Fourth during the past seven years.

DEEDS FILED FOR NORTH FRONT STREET PROPERTIES

Deeds were filed today in the office of the Ulster county clerk for record transferring title in the following parcels of real estate in this city:

Sabotage at Dumont.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Dumont, N. J., July 7.—Airbrake connections were slashed and put out of commission on forty passenger coaches of the West Shore Railroad here last night, it was learned today, although guards were on duty in the yard. The act was alleged to have been done by striking employes.

SENATE VOTES AGAINST CLOTURE

Administration Plan to Hasten Passage of Tariff Bill is Defeated by Vote Lacking Necessary Two-Thirds Majority.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, July 7.—The demand of the administration leaders that the McCumber tariff bill be speeded up by limiting debate on the measure, was turned down flatly by the senate this afternoon.

A motion by Senator McCumber, Republican, of North Dakota, chairman of the senate finance committee, and Senator Curtis, of Kansas, the Republican whip, to adopt a cloture rule, was defeated.

The vote was 45 to 35.

This vote rejected the motion as a two-thirds majority is required to pass cloture.

The vote was strictly along party lines, with five Republicans swinging their support against the motion. The only surprise in the voting was when Senator Johnson, Republican, of California, voted in favor of cloture. Johnson had refused to sign the cloture petition but he announced that because of his support of the tariff bill he would be compelled to support the administration move.

The five Republicans voting against cloture were Borah of Idaho, Brandegee of Connecticut La Follette of Wisconsin, Moses of New Hampshire and Norris of Nebraska. There were thirty Democrats voting and every one opposed cloture.

ROCHESTER GANG HAD MANY GUNS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Rochester, N. Y., July 7.—Police at an early hour this morning rounded up what is believed to be a gang of blackhanders that has been operating in this city and western New York for months. Five arrests were made, each of the men taken into custody being heavily armed. They are:

Raphael Grecco, Stephano Diesa, Mike Spireto, Marco Jardino and Sam Mortiarino.

Guns, ammunition and knives enough to stock a small arsenal, were captured by the police in the course of the round-up they made on a number of suspected places.

Grecco is regarded by the police as the leader of the gang. At his home were found a 30-30 calibre Winchester rifle, fully loaded; an ammunition belt filled with cartridges, a .45 calibre revoicer, two .38 calibre revolvers and five boxes of revolver ammunition. In all the other places raided, deadly weapons were found, mostly revolvers of large calibre. Grecco is said by the police to have a bad record in Pennsylvania.

The convenience of a telephone in each room from which calls can be sent not only to other rooms in the hotel but also to all telephone stations in the city and all long distance points is appreciated by every traveler.

The hotel switchboard will be in charge at all times of a competent operator.

Local Directors Chosen For Hotel Corporation

Judge Fowler, Dr. O'Meara and Herbert Carl, With "Oscar" and Three New Yorkers to Make Up Board—Stock Nearly All Taken.

The men and women of Kingston who have been canvassing for the $150,000 of stock in Kingston's new hotel on the Sharpe property at Albany and Clinton avennes met Thursday night at the Chamber of Commerce rooms on Broadway and after receiving reports of those present of the stock which had been subscribed, accompanied by checks, agreed that the small remaining amount to be taken could be reported by Saturday night.

Accordingly, they proceeded to the consideration of the Ulster county members of the board of directors of the new hotel corporation of which Oscar Tschirky, the internationally known "Oscar of the Waldorf," is to be president. Ulster county will have three members on the board of directors of the new hotel corporation, and by unanimous choice Judge Joseph M. Fowler, Herbert Carl and Dr. Mark O'Meara were selected.

Oscar Tschirky will be one of the New York directors, and the remaining three directors will be selected from among his associates in New York city whose financial interests in the hotel is largest. The incorporation papers are now ready for the names of the seven directors to be inserted, and then signed, upon which they will be filed with the secretary of state at Albany and in the county clerk's office.

Checks turned in by the canvassers at Thursday night's meeting included a number for the full amount of the subscriptions. The subscription lists provide for payment of twenty-five per cent to accompany the subscription, and payment of twenty-five per cent each on the first days of August, September and October, but in many cases the full subscription price has been paid.

Within the past few days a survey of the Sharpe property has been made to determine the grades of the upper and lower levels of the property and to locate with exactness the position of each of the magnificent trees which always have been one of the most attractive features of the property. Because of their beauty, as many of the trees will be spared as is possible without interfering with construction. Similar hotels in other sections which have become famous often have been handicapped by the absence of trees which have had to be transplanted from long distances, but no such handicap exists on the Sharpe property or the street in front. Kingston's magnificent shade trees are an asset whose value has been fully realized by Oscar Tschirky and his associates, both in Ulster county and New York. Arrangements for the survey and other details preliminary to the staking out of the hotel were made by Herman A. Hoysradt of New York City, who has represented Oscar Tschirky in all matters leading up to the formation of the hotel corporation. Mr. Hoysradt, who is a lawyer, has had previous experience in hotel enterprises. He is a cousin of Louis Hoysradt of this city.

L. A. Boomer, president of the corporation which operates the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, which is now owned by the duPont interests, headed by General duPont, has expressed himself favorably to the new undertaking, and as stated in The Hotel Review several days ago, has said he would be glad to help his famous manager in any way he could.

No other hotel manager in the world is so well known personally by so many famous and wealthy people as Oscar Tschirky. To them he is "Oscar," and he always has been and always will be affectionately known to them by that name. To thousands of such people the Waldorf-Astoria is "Oscar's" just as the new hotel in Kingston will be known to them as "Oscar's" hotel.

BALLROOM FIT FOR "PATRIARCHS"

Old Kingston Social Organization Would Doubtless Welcome Accommodations At New Hotel—Two Members Alive.

The statement that the new hotel to be erected upon the Sharpe property is to contain a ballroom and a private dining room has been welcomed by the younger generation of Kingstonians who long have felt the need of both. Kingston always has been noted for the elegance and sumptuousness of its social gatherings. When Washington came here in 1782 he danced at a ball given by the ladies of Kingston at the Bogardus Tavern which stood at the corner of Maiden Lane and Fair street. Shortly afterwards the DeWall Tavern on North Front street, an imposing stone building still standing, was a fashionable resort noted for its wonderful ball room floor. Always Kingston seems to have possessed social organizations of an unusual character. In looking up data regarding them, there was handed to a Freeman reporter the other day a list of subscribers to "The Patriarchs" for the winter of 1872. As will be seen, ten of the subscribers were men of middle age, the other ten were then young. The list is as follows.

George H. Sharpe, Augustus Schoonmaker, S. D. Coykendall, John McEntee, Robert Loughran, Frederick O. Norton, Howard Osterhoudt, James E. Ostrander, A. Wharton Bickley, C. J. Townsend, Jacob H. Tremper, Jr., A. T. Clearwater, Jacob Burhans, Nathaniel S. Smith, Myron Teller, Julius Osterhoudt, Orlando DuBois, N. Berkley Wood, Charles Burhans, George Teller.

This organization, with various changes as to personnel, lasted many years. It was its custom to give a dance on Easter Monday, invitations to which eagerly were sought. So far as the Freeman man could remember, the last dance of the Patriarchs was given the Monday evening following Easter Sunday, at Pythian Hall about ten years ago, and was a most brilliant affair. But two of the subscribers are living today.

MRS. CROSS'S PIG COULD RUN WHEN HE WANTED TO

She Chases Him Three Quarters of a Mile Before Breakfast.

"That pig I had at the Fourth of July celebration, could run if he would, for I staged an exciting and breathless race with him the morning after," says Mrs. Cross. "The visible audience was limited, but they got lots of fun out of it and told the story to all the others.

"The pig is out," said my sister putting her head in the door, the morning after the celebration. He was no longer my property, but his new owner had left him with me, so I dressed very hastily and ran down to head off the the pig. He was out in the road, disputing the way with an automobile. I managed to chase him back into the ward, at the risk of my life, rather than his, then he slipped through the fence and set off down the edge of Nolle Van Wagonen's freshly seeded grass field, and I after him. It was a long field. I said "come piggy" in my most persuasive voice. Piggy would let me almost get my hand on him and then duck away.

He was still greasy, so I couldn't have held him anyway. On we went past a hay field, piggy grabbed a few green apples under a tree, but kept a wary eye on me. Then we sirted a warden, where he showed a strong tendency to root but not get caught, so we crossed the Willow flat and over the stream.

Then I saw he was headed for his former owner, Harry Martin. Piggy ran away up the mountains back of Mr. Martin's and I after him, barely keeping him in sight, when finally Mr. Martin appeared.

"Knows his master's voice," said Mr. Martin as he intoned, "come pig, pig." He came and just as we got him penned, the new owner came driving up. So I know that pig can run for I chased him three quarters of a mile before breakfast.

IN POLICE COURT.

Several Cases Attract Judge Groves's Attention.

Chet. Christiana, who was arrested on Railroad avenue on Thursday afternoon by Officer Dempsey, was fined $5 this morning by Judge Robert G. Groves. Christiana was drunk and disorderly.

Harold Post of 462 Washington avenue, who was arrested Thursday by West Shore Detective Goodsell on a charge of soliciting passengers while standing more than five feet from his car at the West Shore station, contributed $5 to the city treasury.

William J. Conway of Jersey City, arrested Thursday by Officer Soper for speeding, also paid a $5 fine.

David Schwartz of Saugerties, arrested for the same offense, gave bail for his appearance later.

A Different McMahon.

John McMahon, a West Shore railroad maintenance of way employe, living on Foxhall avenue, is alive and well in spite of the fact that John McMahon was shot three times at Ravena. The man shot was another individual, one of those employed after the shopmen struck.

Tells Druggists Not To Take Anyone's Money Unless This Delightful New Vanishing Cream Quickly Shows a Decided Improvement.

Buttermilk Cream creates beauty almost like magic. The most wonderful thing about it is the fact that while it turns the dullest, most lifeless complexion to radiant beauty and makes red or rough hands or arms snowy white, yet there is not the slightest sign of its use. It actually vanishes from sight and the most heated atmosphere will not produce the least shininess or greasiness of the skin.

No matter whether you are troubled with a poor complexion, wrinkles, puffiness around the eyes, freckles, crows feet or lines around the mouth, ugly finger nails, or just a simple roughness of the face, hands or arms caused by wind or sun, you will find that any or all of these troubles will quickly disappear with the use of Howard's Buttermilk Cream. If you cannot obtain locally send 10 cents (silver or stamps) for generous trial package of both Cream and Soap. Howard Bros. Co., Buffalo, N. Y.—Advertisement.

GREASED PIG WASN'T PATRIOTIC

Wouldn't Run When Told To At Willow's Independence Day Celebration—300 People Find Plenty Of Other Amusement.

For the first time in its history Willow had a Fourth of July celebration. It was a real, live, noisy joyous affair, from the morning parade to the evening fireworks and crowded house for the dance

The celebration centered around Crosspatch Annex, which is the present title of the Symond's barn now leased by Mrs. Cross.

Crosspatch Annex doesn't compare in looks or situation with the real Crosspatch house on the mountain, but Mrs. Cross robbed the Mountain house for the Willow celebration, so the Annex was both pretty and comfortable.

The celebration started with a long line of automobiles, gayly decorated with flags and streamers and well equipped with horns and other noisemaking devices. Commissioner Sagendorf's car led the parade with Major Chandler's state troopers and Mrs. Cross in the next car.

Mr. Van de Bogart's family filled the next car and it took the prise for beautiful decoration, then came a long line of cars. The road around Willow valley is lovely and picturesque and it was a sight worth coming far to see, as the parade wound along and could be seen from various points. Several cars fell in along the route and the parade turned in at Crosspatch Annex. It was so picturesque and gay that it will probably be repeated on Labor Day.

The program of sports began right after the parade. A group of Kingston guests were among the victors in the tug-of-war, Mrs Cross regrets that she only remembers the names of Fred Hoffman, Sam Scudder, S. E. Eighmey and Mr Tongue, but there were others. The greased pig was there and he was a big fellow and should have been a lively one, but he was tired from walking across the valley, where Mrs. Cross purchased him and the sad truth was that he didn't run much. He was captured and delivered to the judge, in short order by Mr. Stratton.

"Pork should be very scarce and high priced next fall, judging from the difficulty I had in getting a pig," said Mrs. Cross, "the ideal little six weeks old pig, was not to be had, although I scoured the country between Kingston and Willow. The one I did get was about six months old and we had a lot of fun with him, even if he wouldn't run according to schedule."

The obstacle race provided considerable amusement, especially when most of the contestants went head foremost over the five foot wire fence which was the first hurdle, no one was injured and all were ready to skip the rope, close behind the winner at the close. Bean bag throwing kept the ladies interested for quite a while, but no one managed to make more than two out of three. Running races of various kinds gave the boys and men of all ages a chance to show their prowess during the afternoon, but the ladies preferred dancing and could not be lured into the egg and spoon contest. Good music was provided and the dancing floor was filled all the afternoon. The house was gayly decorated inside and out with flags and bunting.

In the evening there were fully 300 people to see the fireworks and about 200 were able to get into the community house, although the "standing room only" sign was put up early. The dancing floor is very good and the people who like to dance had ample room and seats along the wall were at a premium.

The fireworks were especially good because Mrs. Cross had obtained a second supply from local dealers, when the New York consignment failed to appear by Monday noon. It came late the afternoon of the 4th, so the double supply gave even more illumination than had been expected.

It was a very happy celebration, with such marked good order and cheerfulness prevailing that the state troopers left early in the afternoon. It was like an old home gathering, where people were coming and going all day in cars and many neighborly reunions took place among friends who had not seen each other for years. City and country guests mingled freely and seemed to have a good time.

A Labor Day celebration with a ball game is the next big affair, weekly dances will be held every Wednesday evening during July and August, next Wednesday being the first. At each dance some original and humorous stunt will be provided for the amusement of the guests.

SAFE FINALLY READY FOR GOLD

Truckmen Remove And Deliver Wrong One And No One Is Wiser Until Kraft Casually Happens Along.

Should anyone in this city happen to miss a safe that has disappeared from his premises he should not become excited as it might have been taken by mistake. Such an incident happened in the uptown section of the city this week and as it is out of the ordinary it is worth the telling.

Thomas Cusack, plumber on North Front street, who has moved his shop to his home on Main street, sold his safe to S. Gold, a ladies' tailor with shop adjoining the Eagle Hotel. Howard Winne who does a general trucking business was engaged to move the safe, but in some way understood that the safe to be moved was owned by George Kraft and was at Campbell & Moran's pocket billiard parlor, corner Fair and North Front street, so he loaded up his big auto truck with planks, ropes, tackles and rollers and with some men drove the truck there.

Going into the place he asked "Where's that safe that's to go," and a large safe which Mr. Kraft had stored there since he sold his business a few years ago was pointed out. It was soon loaded on the auto truck and moved to the Gold shop on Main street. There it was unloaded and placed where Mr. Gold wanted it, he not noticing that it was not the one he had purchased of Mr. Cusack.

Here's where the plot thickens. The following day Mr. Kraft paid a visit to his lessees, Campbell & Moran and at once missed his safe and quickly inquired what had become of it and was told that Howard Winne had moved it to S. Gold's, and that they understood he, Kraft, had sold it to him.

Then Mr. Kraft made a few strenuous remarks and walked to Gold's shop and asked for an explanation why he had allowed the expressman to deliver to him a safe which he had not purchased and Mr. Gold explained that he did not know who the men were who had brought the safe and being busy had not made a visual survey of the big strong box delivered.

The next chapter was that Van Etten & Hogan got the job to cart the safe which Gold had purchased from Cusack from North Front street to Main street, and another chapter is that this morning Howard Winne with his big auto truck carted the George Kraft big safe from Gold's back to Campbell & Moran's pocket billiard parlor, corner Fair and North Front street, where it now rests in the corner of the room, its old location for over a score of years

WEST HURLEY.

West Hurley, July 6.—Mr. and Mrs Harvey Ostrander and son, Ernest, and daughter, Margie, Mrs Travis and her little niece, all of West Park, spent Sunday afternoon of last week with Mr and Mrs. Eugene Ostrander.

William Slater of Coxsackie is spending a few days visiting at the home of County Clerk John H. Saxe.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cole of Kingston spent Fourth of July at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Cole.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Kellerhouse and daughter, Areta of Prattsville spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kellerhouse.

Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Hoyt of Passaic spent Fourth of July in this place.

On last Sunday many from this place went to Woodstock to the laying of the corner stone of the new Catholic Church of St Joan of Arc, which is a mission church of West Hurley. They were delighted with the pretty church with its fine carved altar with its statues and stained glass windows. The Very Rev. Dean Hickey laid the corner stone and afterwards blessed and dedicated the church. In his eloquent sermon, he spoke of the need and advantages of the new church for the summer boarders in the surrounding country, who will have their religious needs attended to and have Mass every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. The fine band of the Polish Church of Kingston furnished music. Those who are trying to build houses here are wondering how the church could be so far built in the short space of a month.

WARDS OF ABYSSINIAN KING TO STUDY IN OHIO COLLEGE

Solomon's Descendants Will Hunt Wisdom Where President Harding Went to School.

Three of them are here, Matthew, Mark and Luke, described as wards of the acting king of Abyssinia and members of the royal household. One wonders where John is, but there's no need to wonder over Biblical royal names popping up in Abyssinia, for the monarchs of that ancient and romantic land claim descent from King Solomon and the queen of Sheba.

Yes, it is gravely recorded in the Abyssinian book of kings that the queen of Sheba, whose kingdom lay in the mountainous region of what was once called Ethiopia, presented King Solomon with a son, who was named Menelik—ever since a royal name in Ethiopia.

So it is possible that in the veins of the dusky Matthew, Mark and Luke, who were presented to President Harding the other day, flows the mingled blood of the wisest of kings and the African queen who came "to prove him with hard questions," reminds a New York Sun writer. And she gave him, you remember, "an hundred talents of gold, and of spices very great store, and precious stones," all of which pleasant articles are among the products of Abyssinia today.

Like their great ancestress, Matthew, Mark and Luke are on a pilgrimage in search of wisdom. As there's no King Solomon in the world today they're carrying their quest to an American college, where they hope to become B. A.'s and know a number of things that Solomon forgot to tell the queen of Sheba.

They have selected President Harding's college in Ohio, now Muskingum university. A fatherly American medical missionary presented them to the President, who gave them the glad hand.

It is not on record that they brought the President any inconvenient presents. The late Emperor Menelik had a hearty way of presenting people he admired with lions. He sent a couple to President Roosevelt once, intrusting them to an American mission, which would have been better pleased with a couple of extra mules. Also he burdened them with a pair of enormous elephant tusks for Colonel Roosevelt, and the toting of the royal bounty made their trek back to the coast an exciting one. One of the lions died on the way.

Since the death of Menelik, the strong man of Abyssinia, there has been much factional fighting among the numerous races that make up the population, with gloomy signs of a relapse into the barbarism that reigned before Menelik's time. The throne has been occupied jointly for the most part by Menelik's daughter, Queen Waizeru Zauditu, and Prince Ras Taffari Makonnen, a son of a brother-in-law of Menelik.

Petrified Tree.

From the depths of a coal mine at Wayne, Alberta, Canada, a section of petrified fern tree, 20 feet in length, was excavated. It lay in a bed of clay between two strata of coal, the upper of which was 2,000 years younger than the lower. The specimen is new proof, if this were needed, that central Alberta was once sub-tropical.

Calf With Two Heads.

W. A. Custer of Satanta, Kan., is exhibiting a freak in the form of a baby calf born with two heads. It had only two eyes and two ears. The heads were joined together at the neck. The calf died at birth. It was born on the Custer ranch, six miles west of this place.

COTTON AND WOOL

Ratine, Substitute for Winter Fabric for Outdoor Wear.

Largest Demand at Present Centers on Combination of Gray and Light, Fresh Scarlet.

Ratines, which are practically a homespun in cotton, receive their impetus this year from the fact that wool homespuns are fashionable.

It is interesting to note that those pieces which more nearly approach woolen fabrics in appearance sell most easily. Some one-piece goods departments which are featuring imported ratines, find the suiting pattern is going rapidly.

A check of about an inch and a half square is the most popular, the effect being that of a big checker board plaid with an uneven surface. Black, white and gray have great boldness, while just the opposite result comes from the combining of yellow and gray. But the largest demand centers on the combination of gray and a light, fresh scarlet.

Although many ratines are dyed in the most beautiful of colors, they lose in style as they approach ginghams in character. This is because the ratine garment is not classed with the summer cottons so much as it is considered a cotton substitute for winter fabrics. It is thick flexible and can be trimly tailored. It does not wrinkle and can be worn for a long period before losing its freshness. It can be dry cleaned instead of laundered.

These advantages place it in a class by itself as far as utility is concerned. As for style, a cotton that is heavy in weave is invariably smart for outdoor wear.

An importer of cotton fabrics has brought over ratines that are the exact counterpart of wool cloths in appearance. From English mills they are closely woven and so well dyed that the black is as true as in a good black silk. One, a black and white, cannot be distinguished at a distance from the conventional "pepper-and salt" mixture suiting in wool.

It has been estimated that a foreign ratine can be duplicated here with a third to a quarter reduction in costs.

THE RICH AFTERNOON DRESS

A charming afternoon dress in which the peasant sleeves give a pleasant and unique touch is of blue crepe fabric, embroidered with steel beads on sleeves and skirt.

ORGANDIE USED AS TRIMMING

Black Combined With Lighter Colors; Decoration Rather More Tailored Than Usual.

Organdie trimmings, rather more tailored than usual, are a feature of the spring mode. Black used with lighter colors, as yellow or white, comes in yard trimmings which have short rectangular tabs in irregular lengths attached to a banding so as to form a design. The pointed trimming with triangular sections on a band are seen varying from the trimming of similar shape of last season, in that this, too, is shown in black and another shade, affording a pleasing contrast.

None of the colors are light enough to make a decided contrast; medium blue, slightly on a Copenhagen shade, is one combination with black that is attractive and suitable to darker dresses. These trims, known as "frangettes," are simple, depending for their charm on the contrast with the type material with which they are to be used.

For the Youthful.

Washable flannels in both white and colors are popular fabrics for dresses of the sport or severely tailored type for the younger generation, and a popular trimming for them is either fire ribbon or a silk braid in contrasting color, which is used to bind all the edges.

KEEP THE OKEFINOKEE.

The wise editorial writer will be guarded in his comment, avoiding hasty conclusions, when the subject is one with which he is not well acquainted. A writer for the editorial page of the New York Times lost sight of this safe policy when he saw an announcement of the proposition to preserve the great Okefinokee Swamp of southern Georgia in its natural state and too readily concluded that here was opportunity to be humorous at the expense of an absurdity. Under the caption, "Even Swamps Have Friends," the Times poked fun at the project, reasoning that as all swamps are supposed to breed malaria all swamps should be drained, and that the obvious destiny of all swamps in an advancing civilization is to be converted into truck gardens.

The Times's writer must have been pretty severely jolted by the facts of authorities coming promptly to the aid of the Okefinokee Society and its project. One of these, Philip C. Wakeley of Orange, N. J., after reminding the Times of its insistence on the same page that the National History Museum "should maintain and extend its scientific exploration in order that representative collections of animal life fast vanishing in certain parts of the earth may be secured before it is too late," goes on to say.

The Okefinokee Swamp in its natural state is an invaluable collecting ground for scientific explorers and research workers and the home, and indeed in some cases the last stronghold, of many of the vanishing forms of animal life. Why not preserve the living forms instead of merely dead specimens? Must the time come when we mourn the alligator as we now mourn the great auk, the passenger pigeon and the buffalo? You assume that the Okefinokee is a mere mosquito-breeding bog which would be more valuable as a truck garden, but it is by no means a stagnant bog of the ordinary type The Okefinokee is a vast area of streams (including the headwaters of the Suwanee and St Mary's rivers), swale, cypress swamps, lily ponds and pine-clad islands. It supports a considerable population both white and black. Let the need of truck gardens be met by utilizing abandoned farms nearer the sources of demand. The Okefinokee must be preserved To the scientist it is priceless. Its value as a breeding place of game, especially of water birds, is enormous. It is the home of many of the rare forms of animal life, some of them vanishing It is as unique as Yellowstone Park or the Grand Canyon, and is as worthy to be made a national park, a matchless gem among our collection of natural wonders. Once gone, it can never be replaced.

Another authority, Robert T. Morris of New York, disposes of the Times's hasty "truck garden" argument as follows: "In the older countries of the world people are engaged in making drowned lands of the sort we are destroying, in the interests of increase of food supply Drowned land products in the form of rice, lotus and water chestnuts, for example, furnish the chief bread-flour source for large districts. A large industry supporting families upon comparatively small areas of drowned lands is the crawfish industry and the carp industry in Europe and Asia. Terrapin breeders and musquash breeders derive incomes from drowned lands in this country. Wild fowl breeders and fish breeders in this country are alarmed at the movement toward drainage of wet lands which threatens one of our most rapidly growing food supply enterprises in America. Swamps when drained give uncertain results, excepting to a few promoters. On the whole the drainage of swamp lands in this country, instead of increasing the food supply, will seriously reduce it.

The government at Washington appears to be a good deal disturbed over the "involvements" of the so-called "deep-sea rum question." Attorney-General Daugherty has been asked to give his opinion as to whether "rum" or prohibition follows the flag. It has been cynically observed that it is the Attorney-General's duty to find the kind of law that is wanted by Chairman Lasker, but this is not the whole of the matter. Chairman Lasker insists that without open bars on the Shipping Board's liners they can not compete and that the American people will not "stand for" the virtual junking of a fleet costing so many millions. On the other hand, Mr. Daugherty knows that the American people, after having "stood for" the government's immense loss of revenue due to prohibition and the millions spent to enforce it, are more than dubious about the government's violation of the prohibition law on its ships for the sake of profit. So delicate a situation can hardly fail to prove embarrassing.

The railroads have purchased about 80,000 new freight cars in the first five months of this year, which is about three times the number bought during the whole of 1921. It was the certain prospect of increased business and general prosperity that dictated those investments.

AUXILIARY BLOCK PARTY TONIGHT

The American Legion Auxiliary has completed final arrangements for a more than delightful affair at Academy Green this evening.

The party will open with a community song service led by Prof. Harry Dodge. He will be assisted by Miss Marie Ferrell at the piano, she being a recent honor graduate of the Ithaca Conservatory of Music, Ithaca, N. Y.

Miss Florence Seeley Roberts and partner, professional dancers, who have traveled the United States and danced before exclusive audiences, and have given many exhibition dances in California last winter, will assist. Miss Roberts will give a classic dance in Grecian costume, also cake walk, fancy Spanish dance and an exhibition ball room dance with her partner. They will be accompanied by Miss Marie Ferrell at the piano.

Another feature is Miss Marion Koslow, a graduate of New York Hippodrome Ballet School. Miss Koslow comes with the highest of praise by those who have had the pleasure of seeing her perform She is a pupil of Madame Pavlowa and appeared in the Maverick festival at Woodstock last season

The auxiliary requests that the public assist the artists by being silent during the entertainment, which starts at 7.45 Entrances are on Broadway and Clinton avenue to the Maiden Lane block.

The dancers are accustomed to receiving large pay for their services but are patriotic enough to help the American Legion Auxiliary gratuitously.

Home made cake, Schraft's candy, Dodge's ice cream, Zeeh's soft drinks, good cigars and cigarettes will be on sale.

Colonial City Band, Harry Relyea, conductor, composed of 18 pieces, will render music for dancing. At the completion of the entertainment, which is included in admission, everyone inside of rope must be tagged.

Can You Answer These Questions?

1. I wish to know if figs bloom?
2. What is mother-of-pearl?
3. I notice a little yellow-greenish bird around the shrubberies, with bright yellow throat and breast. Upper side mostly greenish, not bright, but olive. Has a sort of black bandage across the forehead close to the bills and running past the eye What is it?

Answers in Tomorrow's Nature Notes

Answers to Previous Questions.

1 How many toes do ostriches have?

Only two, one much bigger than the other, and able to carry most of the bird's weight. It has a very stout claw, able to rip through extraordinary tough surfaces. The other toe is small and placed higher, but helps form a base of support

2. Are there any other pouched animals beside the kangaroo and opossum?

Yes, chiefly in Australia, also New Guinea, and South America, as wombats, bandicoots, Tasmanian wolves, and a marsupial mole, and one or two other unfamiliar small mammals of these regions.

3. Why do honey bees seem so much more touchy and likely to sting at some times than at others?

The fact that they do vary apparently in temper has been admitted by bee keepers and the theory is that bees work more equably over certain crops than others Some blossoms are loaded with nectar during the cooler hours, but dry in the heat of the day; and as the bees keep on gleaning, they probably become restive when the crop appears to be lacking Clover yields nectar all day, and so do some other nectar sources, in gathering from which the bees seem to be better natured.

Harold Hope Has Planned to Have Many Things, but the First Is a Marble Swimming Pool.

"When I make my first million," said Harold Hope carelessly, "I'm going to build my house."

Harold has so many things to do when he makes his first million that there is some anxiety in the minds of his friends as to whether the money will suffice to pay for them all. A million doesn't go so very far nowadays, you know, observes a New York Sun writer.

"My house," continued Harold, undisturbed by any doubts on that score, "is not going to be like other people's houses. Oh! it's going to be a very original house in many ways. And the one feature of it that I delight in more than anything else about my house is the swimming pool.

"I've always from childhood wanted to have my own private marble swimming pool, with a tame seal in it to skylark with me when I take my plunge. And my dream is going to be realized when I make my first million and build my house. I haven't quite decided whether to have a seal or a sea lion. Whichever I select, I'll probably end by getting a pair of 'em."

Harold's eyes kindled at the thought, and he exclaimed:

"Won't it be wonderful to have those beautiful animals to sport with in the water? You see, a seal swims for enjoyment. It swims for business, too, of course, but when it hasn't any business to swim it just swims for enjoyment. If you watch 'em in their tanks at the aquarium or the zoo you'll see that they take a positively voluptuous joy in their element.

"There's an infinite graceful abandon in the air with which they circle round and round on their backs, or go plunging like porpoises, making a tremendous splash, playing tricks on each other and then at intervals rearing themselves out of the water, pointing their noses as high as they can, and trying to look as if they never broke a plate.

"And the sea lions have the most beautiful eyes in the world, bar none—I don't even except the giraffes, the llamas or the antelopes. And they're very gentle when you domesticate 'em and train 'em. I bet they'll enjoy having a master who swims with 'em every day. Of course I'll get young ones and break 'em in gradually to swimming with me.

"You see, I'm very much the same class of swimmer as the seal family. Maybe I was a sea lion in my last life. Anyhow, I make myself one with the water, just as the seals do. I love to slide lazily down among the roots of the water lilies, and nosey around below the surface with a very seal-like joy in the element. And I look forward to having great games with my pet sea lions when I bathe in my marble tank in the house I mean to build when I make my first million."

Max Was Cautious.

After refusing the slightest assistance to the writer of a book just issued entitled "Max Beerbohm in Perspective," Max continues in the course of his letter: "I remember several books about men who, not yet dead, had blandly aided and abetted the author; and I remember what awful asses those men seemed to me thereby to have made of themselves. Two of them were rather great men They could afford to make awful asses of themselves. I, who am 100 miles away from being great, cannot afford such luxuries. My gifts are small. I've used them very well and discreetly, never straining them; and the result is that I've made a charming little reputation. But that reputation is a frail plant. Don't over-attend to it, Gardener Lynch! Don't drench and deluge it! The contents of a quite small watering-can will be quite enough." And then comes this cautionary advice: "Be judicial. . . . Don't, by dithyrambs, hasten the reaction of critics against me. Tend rather to underrate me—so that those who don't care for my words shall not be incensed, and those who do shall rally round me."—Boston Transcript.

Cars Pulled by Balloon.

Hochstauffen, near Bad Reichenhall, in Germany, will soon have one of the most peculiar railways in the world. It will run up a steep mountain side, and will be operated by a balloon.

The mountain is so steep that no ordinary way of locomotion would do, so it has been planned to hitch a balloon to the car that makes the up trip, and have it practically lift the car to the top of the hill. But the car will be held to the earth by clamps that will retain the wheels close to the rails, and the upward tendency of the balloon will furnish the power.

The big bag of gas will be 67 feet in diameter, and will have a lifting capacity of about 10,000 pounds.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Woman Radio Expert.

One of America's foremost women radio experts is Mrs. Charles E. Cutter, of Tacoma, Wash. Mrs. Cutter was one of the first women wireless operators. For some years she was engaged as a radio instructor and now she is actively interested in a radio manufacturing company.

Facts About the Ostrich.

The ostrich is the biggest bird on earth and has the smallest brain. It weighs as much as a cow and its brain weighs two ounces. Yet it is not stupid. The ostrich lives to be about ninety years old.

WHY

Black Sheep Sometimes Appear Among White Flocks

The appearance of black lambs in a flock made up entirely of white sheep has been for ages and is still a cause for wonder and the basis of superstitions. But the study of the laws of breeding and heredity has explained the reasons for the sporadic appearance of these off-color specimens, according to a bulletin of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Feeding and management of sheep have nothing to do with the appearance of black lambs. The black color is hereditary even though it may be transmitted by ordinary white sheep. The black color in such a case is what is called a recessive character. White sheep which transmit this character at all transmit black in 50 per cent of their reproductive cells and white in the remaining 50 per cent. Thus, such white sheep mated with blacks—which can only transmit black—produce 50 per cent black lambs and 50 per cent white. All of these white lambs can transmit black.

White sheep which transmit only whites, mated with blacks, produce only white lambs, but all of these lambs can transmit black. When both ewe and ram are white, b both transmit black, about 25 per cent of the lambs are black, 50 per cent are white which transmit black, while the remaining 25 per cent are true breeding whites.

WORLD ON ITS LAST LEGS?

Why It Is Said Mankind Won't Be Able to Walk After the Next 10,000 Years.

There is comfort for those cheerless people who believe that the world is on its last legs. Scientists are backing them up. Doctor Vaughn, the health commissioner of Detroit, asserts that in 10,000 years there will be no human legs at all.

It is a startling prediction, coming as it does at a time when the visible supply of legs is larger and more beautiful than ever. It seems incredible that legs should fade out of the picture. With what shall generations of that far future walk? Ah, says Doctor Vaughn, that's just it; the race is going to lose its legs because it doesn't use them any more.

We must remember, observes the New York World, that Doctor Vaughn is in a position to be pessimistic. He is in Detroit, where almost everybody lives on and in motorcars. Infants, instead of being taught to toddle, are shown how to throw out the clutch, shift the gears and slip into first speed; that is, all except the Ford babies, who don't have to bother with gear shifting.

Arms, too, will disappear about the same time that legs depart, unless, says Doctor Vaughn, people use their arms more for real exertion Is the doctor suggesting that modern folk are not working hard enough? It sounds that way. The world needs to be reminded that unless it keeps its biceps in order there will be no tennis tournaments in a hundred centuries or so. Without legs, no dancing. Without arms, no baseball. All the sports of the distant future will be telepathic. The Babe Ruths of the period will swat the ball with the bat of thought. The Joie Rays will run miles on the track of their minds. The Jack Dempseys will assault their opponents with the punch of pure reason.

Why Britain Values the Bahamas.

The Bahamas are a chain of coral islands generally grouped with the West Indies. They belong to Great Britain. The group includes 29 islands and 660 islets, but only about 20 are inhabited. The coral rock is porous, retaining moisture, hence the soil that has accumulated is very fertile. The islands produce maize, cotton, sisal hemp, pineapples, oranges, lemons, olives, tamarinds, and other sub-tropical fruits. Large quantities of sponges are taken from the surrounding seas. The principal exports are sponges, fruits and sisal fiber. Tomatoes are being extensively cultivated and shipped to the United States. Mahogany, lignum-vitae, mastic, ironwood, ebony, boxwood and satinwood are found throughout the islands. The fiber exported in 1920 had a value of about half a million dollars.

Why Obituarist Resigned.

The late Archie L. Williams, for many years general attorney for the Union Pacific, was a chief obituarist of the Middle West whenever a notable died, Capper's Weekly states. On one occasion he wrote a column or more about an old friend who had died and concluded it: "Let us pause and on his bier drop a tear." A drunken printer thought he could improve it so he set it up: "Let us pause and on his bier drop a tear or two." The proofreader, also soused, decided it was up to him to add something so he made it read: "Let us pause and on his bier drop a tear or two, or perhaps three." When the "obit" came out in the paper that way Archie resigned as obituarist.

ventors Work at Top Speed on Devices for Wireless.

EW WONDERS ARE EXPECTED

ith More Than 1,000 Patents Involving Every Imaginable Thing Wireless Can or Cannot Do, and With 2,000 to 3,000 Others Pending, the Patent Office Staff Charged With Granting Wireless Patents Is One of Busiest Places in Capital.

Everybody knows the wonders of he wireless, but only a few really comprehend the vast field covered by he science of radiography. There is erhaps but a single place in all Amerca where one can grasp to a certain xtent the scope of the wireless. That s the United States patent office. Go here and you probably will be referred o Dr. William A. Kinnan, assistant ommissioner of patents, and if Dr. Kinnan is not too busy he will tell you ome things about communication you ever knew before, says the New York imes.

It would take weeks to go through ll the records and volumes to tell the tory of wireless as recorded in the les of the patent office. With more an one thousand patents involving er imaginable thing that wireless can cannot do, and with between 2,000 nd 3,000 others pending, the patent ffice staff charged with the investigaon and granting of wireless patents one of the busiest places in the naonal capital.

"It is a pretty safe wager," said an fficial of the wireless division, "that any device is concerned with wireless you can find out all about it somewhere in our files. Patents granted nd patents pending number in the housands and every day the number increasing. This is particularly true ith reference to wireless telephony, he latest and perhaps the most wonerful of the radio developments. The ajority of the patents now pending r applied for relate to the receiving hase of the wireless science, with ransmission suggestions running a lose second. Hundreds of others have o do with improving existing patents nd these include every imaginable roposition involving the use or adaptbility of wireless. In many instances he new ideas advanced are meritorious nd worthy of consideration by the cientific and industrial world."

The men who are devoting their lives o the study of this most wonderful of odern scientific wonders could be accurately listed from the files of the atent office. It is a great list that egins with Marconi and Fleming and rpin and ends with young men and omen, some still in college and few nown outside of their own circles. very day or two a new name is added the list and the ever-increasing numer suggests the wonders yet to be isclosed as a result of radio research.

Patents to Meet Every Need.

The New York Times correspondent d the opportunity a few days ago to lance through some of the patent recrds relating to radio development. Of ourse the inspection had to do only ith patents already granted, for the ecret of pending patents is as carefully guarded as the money dies in the hiladelphia mint.

There was one patent for a receiving pparatus recently approved which, its ventor believes, will make possible he simultaneous reception of sound nd wireless telegraph signals; another eferred to a system for the radio conrol of "moving bodies"; another a evice that silenced "atmospheric ulses" in the case of the wireless telehone. Still another was intended to own noises incident to the setting p of oscillations.

There are patents granted or pendg designed to control by wireless ats, aircraft and all sorts of vehicles hich it is stated "may be controlled d guided in the direction of a transitting station." Another "simultaneus" device which has been approved d granted the protection of the patt law is expected to make possible simultaneous transmission of eech and signals, and another conplates the sending of wireless sigls under water, which, if successful, uld go a long way toward solving communication problem involved the operation of submarines.

There are patents involving radio tography, the practicability of hich has figured in the wireless news several years past. One is a patent scribed as a "device for transmitting reproducing the forms and shapes objects and solids at a distance." nother apparatus which has weathed patent office investigation is deigned to eliminate the disturbing efcts on wireless tuning apparatus used by "movements of the human dy."

There are patents to control the acn of torpedoes, to safeguard the vigation of ships, to simplify transsion on land, under water and in sky, and countless propositions reng to the minor details of the vice.

r. Kinnan is the official who sits judgment on the wireless inventor. Electricity," he said, "in the lightg's flash splits the mighty oak, yet the small, silent vibration of wireless waves it must be multiplied a hunred fold to move the sounding diaphragm of the ordinary telephone reiver. But that diaphragm will make ood noise from the same energy which a pin, dropped from the head, strikes the floor. Among all the interesting phases of the electric art, none is more fascinating and technical and complex than the art of radio communication.

Principle Almost Unlimited.

"It was Sir Oliver Lodge who said, following Marconi's initial experiments in wireless, that the day would come when a man in New York or London would be able to call up his friend in Tokyo, Alaska, Russia, South Africa or in any other part of the world, and if the friend did not answer he would know that his friend was dead. That was a very broad statement, but it may be true.

"Most people seldom consider the lack of progress made in the communication of intelligence between distant points, for thousands and thousands of years, and what strides have been made within the memory of men and women now living. Not until 1844, when Morse, surrounded by a curious, skeptical company, received over a telegraph wire the famous message: 'What hath God wrought!' did the world obtain any means of quicker communication.

"In 1876 Dr. Alexander Bell showed the world how to talk over a wire along which an electric current was passing by impressing on that current variations corresponding to the sound waves produced by speech. He was quickly followed by a host of improvers, so that today conversation is possible over wires between almost every point in any one of the civilized countries of the world.

"A Spanish scientist, Salva of Barcelona, 125 years ago signaled across water by making the water conduct the current. Professor Morse, before he completed his telegraph, conducted experiments along the canal above Georgetown, D. C., and succeeded in signaling without wires across the canal by making the water conduct the current. Efforts to signal between ships in this way were tried by Dr. Bell in 1882, and he succeeded in signaling without wires between vessels a mile and a quarter apart. A Professor Hughes of London in 1878 had a device with which he signaled a distance by means of what we now know to have been true wireless or electromagnetic waves. But he had never heard of wireless waves and his scientific friends did not think what he did amounted to much, so Hughes gave it up.

"If we would appreciate the fire and the sun we must look at the fire first, so in this matter of wireless, having first looked at the previous efforts to signal without wires, we now look at the wondrous discovery of electro-magnetic wave transmission. The simile is not inapt when we recall that the rays of light, those of radiant heat, and the Hertzian waves from the transmitting antennae of a wireless set, are all electro-magnetic waves differing only in their length, and, of course, in the frequency with which they are emitted or given off. They all travel at the same speed, 185,000 miles a second, and can be reflected and refracted.

Marconi Is Pioneer.

"It was in 1896 that Marconi, who had been experimenting with great skill and patience on his father's farm in Italy, succeeded in signaling without wires for a distance of 100 yards. One year later he signaled nine miles, and in two months increased the distance to 12 miles. In July, 1898, he signaled 20 miles, and in 1901 his signal crossed the Atlantic ocean.

"As is usually the case whenever a great pioneer invention is made, the success of Marconi caused a host of inventors and improvers, including some of the greatest electricians the world has known, to take up the subject from every angle and viewpoint. The apparatus that Marconi used is now of only historical interest. A modern wireless set comprises nothing similar to what he used. Of all the changes that have been made, the new things that the brightest geniuses of the world have been able to produce, the one that surpasses all, and that makes modern wireless telephony and telegraphy what it is today, is the thermionic device, which is a detector of the waves, an amplifier of their feeble energy, and a generator of the oscillatory currents necessary for sending the message.

"Some wires, generally three in number, run parallel to each other and supported on poles or a housetop, which we call antennae—from the analogy to the feelers of an insect like a bug or cricket—constitute the feelers that catch the energy of the swiftly passing waves. This energy sets up small, feeble currents in this wonderful little thermionic detector, and with a telephone receiver the operator can listen to the message.

"The antennae wires, an induction coil, a tuning coil and condenser, a small source of electric current and this thermionic detector constitute, with a telephone receiver, all that is necessary. The transmitting device includes again a thermionic device like that used in the receiver, only several are used; a battery, a telephone transmitter, the induction coil, the tuning coil, the condenser, and that is about all.

"Today, with the development of the wireless, a development still in its infancy, a new world, hitherto a world of silence, has become a world of sound; sounds of human voices from far across the lands and waters, and of human songs and sweet instruments, coming through the night. One may almost feel that he can, as the poet sang, hear the music of the spheres."

Germany Destroying War Tools.

Up to March 1, 1922, Germany had destroyed 5,665,000 rifles and carbines, 104,000 machine guns, 85,760,000 loaded shells and mines, 14,800,000 grenades, 18,503 airplanes, and 24,045 airplane engines, according to official figures just made public in Berlin.

LAYS WORRY ASIDE

"Uncle Jim" Unaffected by Cares of the Day.

"Squatter" in New York City Has Permanent Home and All His Modest Needs Supplied.

In New York, where the high-cost-of-living specter haunts the millions and some millionaires, possession by a penniless man of health, happiness and a home on Riverside drive, with acres of front lawn, is perhaps an accomplishment without precedent. Yet, for 22 years, "Uncle Jim" Miller, Manhattan's oldest, if not only real "squatter," has enjoyed these things as a result of:

"Just believin' in God."

Uncle Jim is a negro who, on February 10, entered upon his seventy-third year, and is today smilingly confident that he will live beyond the century mark without the loss of his health or physical activity. His theory is that God will take care of anyone who trusts Him, although he does not quite carry this belief to the point of a lily-of-the-field existence, and admits that his health has been and will be maintained by his physical efforts in gathering, cutting and sawing wood for his winter fires, doing his own washing and cooking and otherwise keeping his house in order.

In 1900, when what is now his front lawn was marsh land almost on a level with the Hudson river, "Uncle Jim" was employed by a contractor named Conway as one of a number of laborers who were to fill in the marshes lying along the Hudson's east bank. He was provided with boards for a little "shack" which he built with its back against a huge boulder. Then he aided in filling in what is now his front yard. When the work was completed and the contractor and his men moved, "Uncle Jim," having staked his claim, as he says, decided to "squat" there indefinitely.

Conway said it was all right with him, and since then various owners of the property have given tacit consent to his remaining. As his lawn is filled-in-land, hardly suitable for the foundations of houses, the old "squatter" feels secure in his possession.

The one-room shack is now strengthened on the river side by sheets of tin which resist the winter blasts. Within is a stove, some cooking and eating utensils and a cot, but "Uncle Jim" spends most of his time outdoors. From the Hudson he obtains crabs and fish for his meals, and an odd job now and then brings sufficient change with which to buy bread, coffee and tobacco.

"When I came here," said "Uncle Jim," "this was all a wilderness. I always liked to tough it, and I never in my life worried about anything. I'm happy and never was sick a day. I get all I need, and this is the kind of life I like—so why shouldn't I be thankful?

"I don't want any better home than this, and I don't need any more money to live as I do here. I want to be outdoors all the time. At night I read a little by lamplight. I never wore glasses, and lately I think I am getting my second sight—I can see better than I did a short while back."

As he talked "Uncle Jim" sat in front of his shack smoking a pipe that appeared to be almost as old as its owner, and quite as strong, and smiling broadly, a perfect outpicturing of his peculiarly serene mental make-up.

Bologna and Sausage Alike.

When is a sausage not a sausage? When it's a bologna.

This puzzling question was decided, and then again it was not, recently by the Hoboken (N. Y.) zoning commission. Just when it looked as if there was much difference between a sausage and a bologna it was decided that, both of them wearing tights, they were the same thing.

It was an important question in Hoboken. It arose over the application of George E. Herold, 85-87 Jackson street, for a permit to erect a plant for the manufacture of smoked ham, general provisions and bologna. The zoning ordinance of Hoboken forbids the manufacture of sausage in the business zone. There was much discussion and it seemed for a time as if the matter might reach serious proportions when Building Inspector Joseph Cummings finally definitely decided the question.

"They both wear tights, and that makes sausage and bologna the same thing," he said. The permit was refused, but decision was deferred until the next meeting.

Rivalry in Crying.

It was Edward's first year at school and the teacher, finding one day that he had not mastered his lesson properly, told him to remain after school and she would help him. When the time for dismissal came and Edward saw the other children leaving he thought he was being punished by being kept in and he began to cry. The teacher in an effort to quiet him said, "Edward, I never heard such loud crying." Edward stopped and looked at her through his tears and said: "Well, you ought to hear my brother Donald, he's got me skinned a mile."

Women Conduct Church Service.

At the East End Methodist church at Montreal on a recent Sunday the entire service was conducted by women members. They acted as ushers also, and furnished the musical program, while the pastor of the church sat with the congregation.

ORDERED EGGS, BEAT UP COOK

Hotel Kaaterskill Cook Seeks Justice For Autoists Whom He Says Used Fists and Feet on His Person.

William Andres, who said he was a cook at the Hotel Kaaterskill, and who had various marks of fists about his countenance appeared before Sheriff Pierce at Catskill Thursday seeking justice for an alleged assault. Although Andres speaks Swiss-German volubly he showed a birth certificate from Las Cruces, New Mexico. The argument he says started over an order for eggs made by an automobile party in which there was a young woman.

Andres was brought to Kingston and given medical aid and then made a complaint to Sheriff Kolts. As the affair took place in Greene county a deputy was sent with him back to Catskill and a complaint made there with the Greene county sheriff. Two warrants were issued for the arrest of the parties who it is alleged committed the assault with fist and foot upon the man. The warrants were issued by Justice Waggoner of Catskill. An investigation will be made by Sheriff Pierce today when a visit will be made to the Hotel Kaaterskill to learn the facts of the case.

FOR VALUE RECEIVED?

A Garage Ahead of Most in Getting Motorists' Money.

A traveling salesman of Kingston who stopped at a Saugerties garage for gas and oil on Thursday, was surprised to find that in addition to the charge of one dollar a gallon for oil the garage added a charge of fifty cents for "labor" in drawing off the old oil. The "labor" occupied about three minutes. Later inthe day he learned that at Catskill the garages charge ninety cents a gallon for oil without any additional charge for "labor," and at Cairo the garages for the same oil charge eighty cents "when they can get it." The "labor" charge is an innovation which is not likely to be popular with motorists.

The Soil Does Not Exhaust.

Dr. Curtis F. Marbut of the United States Department of Agriculture has sailed on a three-months' trip to Europe, and his special mission will be to determine why it is that the soil in some parts of Europe which has been worked since the Christian era, has not been exhausted. He will bring home samples of the soils of various countries visited and analyses will be made in the endeavor to arrive at the secret. In Italy and Greece the soil has been tilled for centuries and has never been fertilized, and has never had the advantage of live stock raising.

Look Before You Leap.

A novice was braving the Dartmouth ski-jump. He shot down the incline, lurched weakly at the take-off, landed face downward below and finished the slide, nose first, plowing into the snow smother.

"You jumped too late, Joe!" yelled an enthusiast.

"Naw"—from the smother below—"I jumped too soon. Should have learned more about the game first."—Everybody's Magazine.

NEEDLE TRACED IN CITY BY MYSTERIOUS DOCTOR

Article Hidden by Committee In Jerusalem Found by "Psychic Power."

To find a needle in a haystack is popularly supposed to be a feat so difficult that the odds against its successful accomplishment would be something like a million to one. Yet a feat that to the ordinary man would appear, if anything, still more difficult, has recently been accomplished in Jerusalem, according to newspapers published there. It was nothing less than the finding of a needle hidden in Jerusalem.

This was done by Doctor Hanossen, who claims to be endowed with a mysterious "psychic" faculty, by means of which he can read thoughts and find out things that cannot be discovered by means of mere sight or hearing. The finding of the needle was accepted as the proof of his claim and he was awarded £100. He found the needle within twenty-five minutes, excluding the time taken to reach the place of concealment.

A committee was appointed to supervise the test. Doctor Hanossen was secured in a house, then the committee set forth in motor cars, one of them carrying the needle.

Several streets were traversed, cars and drivers were changed, and, by a circuitous route, the lunatic asylum was reached. There, behind a portrait of Sir Herbert Samuel, the needle was hidden. Then the committee returned to the house in which Doctor Hanossen had been left and released him.

In a motor car he started to find the needle. After passing through many streets, Doctor Hanossen left the auto and proceeded on foot to the asylum. Arrived there, with hardly a moment's hesitation, he made for the portrait and found the needle.

BLIND GIRL STUDENT GRADUATES WITH HONORS

Miss Burke, who is totally blind, received the scholastic honor of election to Phi Beta Kappa. She prepared for college at home and came to Barnard from the University of Wisconsin. She has specialized in history and romance languages.

By the use of a steel frame to hold her note paper, upon which she made perforations with a stylus, Miss Burke took all her class notes. Her mother, with whom she lives at 618 West One Hundred and Fourteenth street, New York, assists her by reading aloud. Her examinations were written with unusual speed—upon an ordinary typewriter.

RESENT FLAG CHANGE

Reported to Be Aroused Over Recent Alteration of Marine Emblem.

Change in the German merchant marine flag, made effective in January, has aroused a storm of discontent in Teuton shipping circles, according to a report to the Commerce department in Washington from Vice Consul Maurice Walk, at Hamburg.

"The change is resented," he said, "because it signifies to the people here the final surrender of the old German sea aspirations. It breaks with a tradition which in the generation before the war had brought German ships to all parts of the world, and made them a serious challenge to British sea supremacy. The present clamor is the more interesting because it indicates how little Germany has renounced the old ambitions which led to so catastrophic a climax."

Hawk Plays Stork.

The strange incident of a hawk playing the role of a stork and depositing a live pig on the farm of H. C. Stanley of Cherry Valley, Ill., was told at the sale of the porker after it had grown to killing size. A dog on the Stanley farm noticed the hawk flying low over the farm, followed by a flock of crows. Chasing the strange spectacle the dog frightened the captor and it dropped its prey. The baby pig was fed with a spoon until it grew strong. At the time it was sold the pig weighed 325 pounds and was the father of 80 pigs.

INGRAM JAILED, AUTOPSY ON SMITH

An autopsy was performed Wednesday night upon the body of William Smith, colored, who was shot at Prattsville on July 4. The autopsy was performed at the undertaking parlors of Lee V. Grogan on Wall and Pearl street by Dr. O'Meara assisted by Dr. Van Hoesen of Coxsackie and Dr. Dowell of Albany. District Attorney Curtis of Greene county was present. Witnesses to the shooting say that Smith came to the house of Edmund Ingram, also colored, just as Ingram and his wife were having an argument as to the desirability of a colored woman, said to be a camp follower, coming to the Ingham house to stay. Ingram protested against the woman coming and Smith edged into the argument and engaged Ingram in a dispute. Witnesses say the two men then began to scuffle and that Smith drew a knife and attempted to open it with his teeth. Ingram then shot, one bullet taking effect in Smith's arm and another in the abdomen. Ingram is lodged in the Greene county jail but claims the shooting was in self defence.

SHOPMEN NOT ALARMED AT LOSS OF SENIORITY

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, July 7.—Railway shop employes out on strike, are not alarmed over the prospect of losing priority or pension rights, David Williams, international president of the machinists, and head of a general committee co-ordinating strike forces here and in adjacent districts, said today.

"We are not worried," said Williams, "because we knew that an organization composed of men now filling union men's jobs probably will not be formed and would not last if it did.

"The strikers are not going to lose any of their rights because they are not going back until these rights are restored to them."

DISAPPEARS WITH FORTUNE ON HIM

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, July 7.—New York police today asked the authorities of many cities in the east to search for Alva C. Kendall, former Princeton football star and now owner of Alaskan gold mines, who disappeared from his Greenwich Village quarters on Wednesday morning with $100,000 in currency in his pockets. In addition to the currency, he carried a pocketful of gold pieces and gold nuggets.

Mr. and Mrs. Byron W. Smith, old friends of the Kendall family, with whom the missing man had been living, fear that he has either been murdered or else has been drugged and is being held in captivity.

Kendall is a native of Omaha, Neb. After his graduation from Princeton, he went to Alaska as a mining engineer. Upon his return to New York a year ago, he appeared to be rolling in wealth and kept his friends in a state of constant fear, by carrying thousands of dollars in currency and gold about in his pockets. He is 38 years of age and powerfully built. He was a star halfback on the Princeton eleven between 1911 and 1915. He is a bachelor.

LITTLE DAMAGE IN SUBWAY PANIC

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, July 7.—With three investigations under way today into the Lexington avenue subway accident of yesterday, when scores were "gassed" by fumes and the lives of hundreds were imperilled, it was indicated that further safeguards in the way of emergency exits will be ordered.

Less than fifteen persons were still under treatment in hospitals and it was said that all would recover. Despite the huge proportions of panic that accompanied the accident, the damage amounted to only $100.

Among the suggestions that have been made to prevent such mishaps in the future, was one that the materials in the fire fighting apparatus on the trains, be changed.

Chemists declared that the chemicals used in the hand extinguishers in the subway throw off a deadly phosgene gas when they come into contact with flames. President Hedley, of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, denies this however.

REPORT HAS DE VALERA AND PARTY SURROUNDED

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, July 7 (12.45 p. m.)—It is reported that Eamonn de Valera and Erskine Childers, with the Irish rebel followers, have been surrounded in the hills in the southern part of Dublin county, said a Dublin despatch to the Evening News today.

A Central News despatch from Dublin said that Cathal Brugha, chief aide to De Valera, had died of his wounds in Mater Hospital at 11 o'clock. Brugha was wounded in the fighting at Dublin Wednesday night.

Autoist Smashed Door.

Last Monday Samuel Agrin, who lives on the Lucas avenue extension, in trying to make the turn in the road at Thomas street and Railroad avenue, lost control of his car which ran up on the walk on Thomas street and crashed into the door of Pessenar's Hotel. The heavy door was lifted from its hinges and hurled into the room. The door in falling broke a number of bottles on the counter containing syrups for soda water. The damage is now being repaired.

Kills Wife and Self.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Pittsburgh, July 7.—Deputy United States Marshal Frank S. Smith shot and killed his wife today and then killed himself. The couple whose home was at Steubenville, Ohio, resided in the Oakland district here. The bodies were found at 10 o'clock by the janitor, who broke in a door when the Smiths failed to answer calls. There were evidences of a struggle before the double killing.

The Kiwanis baseball team beat a team made up of gas company employes at the Athletic Field Thursday evening 16 to 9. FIRST LAW IS HOSPITALITY

Arabs Will Quarrel Over the Privilege of Entertaining a Visitor—Strict Rule of Etiquette.

Although most Arabs are Bedouins or nomads, many of this ancient race live in towns. To the traveler unused to the swaying and almost "mal de mer" inducing motion of the camel—for this is the mode of locomotion in Arabia—it is a great relief to come to one of these dingy yet picturesque towns.

With a sigh of relief the care-worn and dust-covered voyager crosses the dry moat and passes through the city walls. All Arabian towns have walls and turrets. The traveler wonders what the great standpipe is, rising high above the houses, and if by chance there might be some industry connected with it. But on inquiring he finds that it is the watch tower—a remnant of the Middle ages when only spears and lances were used in warfare. Today the tower would fall quickly if it were hit by the shell from a five-pound gun.

To visit in one of the Arabian houses is indeed a great pleasure, for the Arabs are most hospitable, and treat their guests royally, asserts Temple Manning in the Cleveland Plain Dealer. In fact, the whole town will squabble over the privilege of entertaining a visitor.

No mention of the length of a visitor's stay or where he is going is alluded to—this would be the height of ill manners. For this handsome and bold race are gallant and courteous to the last degree, and some of their forms of conduct are difficult for the Westerner to adopt.

Although it is fascinating to live as a guest of an Arabian family, it is really difficult, and one must be on his guard if he cares to be invited again.

The main room in every Arabian house is the coffee room. Here is where the men meet at all hours and talk and drink the Arabian coffee, which is so strong that it is apt to keep the guest awake all night.

There is no furnishing in the room save rugs. On these beautiful rugs one sits, and is very careful not to let his foot stick out in front of him. For in an Arabian house feet are to be used, but never seen.

If you should visit in this land of "A Thousand and One Nights," be sure to tuck your feet under you, no matter how uncomfortable, because if you don't you will be considered bad-mannered and will not be asked to call again!

Queer Cargoes.

The oddest cargo recorded was probably that carried lately by a British steamer bound for Morocco.

It consisted of some two million gallons of water. To carry that amount of water a distance of 15,000 miles sounds too absurd, but the matter becomes clearer when we are told that the water was specially purified drinking water for the use of the Spanish troops fighting the rebels in Morocco.

Another cargo sent to Spain consisted of an immense quantity of bank notes. There were several millions of these, most of them of small value. It is testimonial to British printing that Spain gave such an order, and is due to the fact that notes printed in Spain have been so largely counterfeited.

A master stevedore, working at the Albert docks, London, recently received compensation for being hit on the head by a bundle of old horseshoes which were being loaded into a steamer's hold.

In court the judge asked the reason for sending old horseshoes out of the country. Counsel told him that they were being sent to China, where they were made into spades, a purpose for which they were specially suitable.

Slave.

The word "slave," in the sense in which it was used in America until the proclamation by President Lincoln that abolished it, was originally the name of a great branch of the human race. That branch was the Slavs, among whom the Russians, the Poles and the Czechs are numbered.

In the early wars between the Germans and the Slavs, the Slavic captives were used much as the negroes were used in parts of America prior to the Civil war. Hence a bondman was designated as a "Slav" or slave by the Germanic conquerors.

By way of an offset to this contemptible designation of the Slav as "slaves," it is only fair to point out that the Slavs trace the derivation of their race name to "slava," or glory.—Chicago Journal.

Tunnel vs. Airplane.

The channel tunnel is a popular subject to debate in England, and it is again being discussed. This time a new phase has entered into the discussion, for the belief is being expressed that the projected construction of a channel tunnel may never be carried out because of the very strenuous competition which air transport would be in a position to offer by the time such a tunnel could be completed and got into operation.

Counterfeit Postage Stamps.

A feature of the present prevalence of crime is the counterfeiting of contemporary postage stamps on an extensive scale. Not long ago the Argentine republic was compelled to change the design of its 5 centavos stamps through this cause. Now the news comes from Peking that the discovery of dangerous imitations of the current 7, 10 and 15-cent stamps of China has necessitated their withdrawal from circulation.

Is This Encouraging Idolatry?

Speaking of exports to the East, there is a certain English firm which, in the course of its ordinary business, produces large quantities of waste spelter and lead. This material is melted up, run into molds and exported in the form of images of various eastern gods.

American Food and Kitchens Restore Smiles and Contentment to Russian Mothers and Babies

This is a Russian baby living today, and rapidly reaching ruddy health, by the grace of American food distributed by the American Relief Administration, of which Herbert Hoover is chairman.

This Russian mother is supremely happy in the health of her little boy, for no longer must she see him waste under her eyes because of lack of food. America has changed that. American bread, rice, cocoa and other supplies for the baby, and American corn, purchased under the $20,000,000 government appropriation for adults, has put an end to the worst famine in history.

Three million of these children are fed in 11,000 A. R. A. kitchens, located all over Russia, while American gift corn is being distributed to 5,000,000 adults, giving them the strength to till their fields and plant American seed that is necessary to give them a harvest.

Col. William N. Haskell, director for Russia of the American Relief Administration, reports that the famine situation is well under control.

Food Remittances from American Relatives Save Many Russian Adults from Starvation; Children Express Gratitude for Succor

A warm, nourishing American meal daily for children, American corn purchased under the $20,000,000 Congressional appropriation for Russian relief, together with the food packages sent from the United States for adults, is gradually but surely overcoming the famine in Russia—one of the most devastating in history.

In the photographs printed above, the children with their hands extended have been rescued from actual starvation by the American Relief Administration through its child feeding program, and are pleading that America continue its charity until a plentiful harvest will have placed them beyond the need of outside help. The other pictures show the packing of the staples that comprise the Hoover Food Remittance packages. By means of the Food Remittance system, anyone in America may send nourishing food to needy relatives, friends, institutions or groups of individuals in Russia, by applying either in person or by mail to the offices of the American Relief Administration, 42 Broadway, New York City. The packages are sold in amounts from $10 up, each $10 package containing 117 pounds of American food—including rice, flour, preserved milk, cooking fats, sugar and tea.

Colonel William N. Haskell, director in Russia, who has just returned to Moscow after an extended trip through the famine regions, reports that everywhere the famine is rapidly being brought under control. Even where conditions have been particularly bad, he states, the relief programs already instituted will eradicate actual starvation within a month or six weeks. He reports that at the present time the American Relief Administration is feeding 3,000,000 children, and 3,000,000 adults daily. One should not confuse starvation with hunger. One means death; the other means misery, which covers all of Russia, among whose millions there will be suffering for a long time.

Captain C. Hamilton Cook

Amid scenes of excitement, Captain C. Hamilton Cook, of Buffalo, N. Y., was unanimously elected National Commander of the Disabled Veterans of the World War at the close of the second annual convention in San Francisco.

Full military honors were accorded Sir Henry Wilson, victim of Irish zealots, who murdered him on the steps of his London home, thousands lining the streets as the dead Field Marshal was taken to St. Paul's Cathedral. The body was borne on a gun carriage, and his white horse, with stirrups reversed, may be seen following the funeral cortege.

STRIKE SITUATION AT DECATUR MUCH BETTER

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Springfield, Ill., July 7.—The strike situation at Decatur apparently has quieted down and unless there are reports of renewed violence in connection with the strike of Wabash Railroad shop men there, the state troops now mobilized will not be dispatched to that place. This advice came today from Col. Frank L. Taylor, of the adjutant general's office. Adjutant General Black left his office early this morning, after receiving a report that "all's well," from Decatur at 2:30 a. m., but returned to await further developments.

The militiamen will be held at their armories until further notice.

New York, July 7.—The stock marwet was active and strong at the opening today with the railroad issues in good demand. Reading moved up ⅞ to 77 and New York Central was ¾ higher at 97¾. Studebaker rose ¼ to 130¼ and U. S. Rubber showed a gain of ¾ at 63¾. Mexican Petroleum was 1¼ lower at 163½, while Standard Oil of California rose 1⅛ to 107⅝. U. S. Steel was ⅛ higher at 100⅛, while Midvale moved up ½ to 35.

Maxwell Motor advanced 1 point to 67.

The market maintained a strong tone throughout the afternoon, although many issues reacted under profit-taking sales.

Many Inventors Watchmakers.

Watchmaking was the first step to most of the principal inventions that make modern industry what it is today, Carl W. Mitman, curator of the United States National museum, declared at a meeting of the Horological Institute of America in Washington. James Watt, who invented the separate condenser of the steam engine which resulted in the development of the true steam engine and began the replacement of hand power and appliances by mechanical devices, was first a watchmaker and then an instrument maker. George Stephenson, whose locomotive first definitely established the economic worth of steam transportation, though an engineman and engineer, made extra money by repairing the watches and clocks of his neighbors.

Romantic History.

Lady Mary Wortley Montagu has said, with equal truth and taste, that the most romantic region of every country is that where the mountains unite themselves with the plains and lowlands. For similar reasons, it may in like manner be said, that the most picturesque period in history is that when the ancient rough and wild manners of a barbarous age are just becoming innovated upon, and contrasted, by the illumination of increased or revived learning, and the instructions of renewed and reformed religion. The strong contrast produced by the opposition of ancient manners to those which are gradually subduing them, affords the lights and shadows necessary to give effect to fictitious narrative.—Sir Walter Scott.

Medieval Physicians.

Women of the Middle ages were so far advanced that they studied and practiced medicine. One woman, Stephonia, whose husband was killed by the Emperor Otto III, forthwith began to study pathology. Just about the time she had completed her course of study, the emperor became ill, and she marched off to cure him, and did actually start him on the way to complete recovery. Then, when he was beginning to feel fine again, Doctor Stephonia said to him: "When it gets chilly at night wrap yourself in this," and handed him a nice warm deerskin. Otto took the doctor's advice, and died in a little while "in great agony." Stephonia had smeared the deerskin with corrosive poisons.

"Gopher" Has Many Names.

The name "gopher" which is loosely applied to a variety of animals in different parts of the American continent is a corruption of the French word "gaufre," meaning a honeycomb. It was applied by settlers to a number of burrowing animals from their habit of honeycombing the earth. In Canada and Illinois the name is today applied to the gray burrowing squirrel and in Wisconsin to the gray striped squirrel which, in some sections, is called a chipmunk. In Missouri a gopher is a brown pouched rat, in Georgia he is a snake, and in Florida he is a turtle. Minnesota is called the Gopher state from the fact that the striped squirrel was formerly found there in great numbers.

Chasm Between the Classes.

The land of Rumania is as rich as any in the world, so that this small kingdom stands fifth among nations for wheat and fifth for wine. Rumania has 20,000,000 acres. Some ten million acres are divided into little peasant holdings of less than ten acres each; some ten millions into great estates averaging over two thousand acres, worked by laborers not far from serfdom, while the owners spend their money lavishly in Bucharest or Paris. So it comes that in no other country in Europe is the chasm so wide between the few very wealthy landowners—less than five thousand families—and the great bulk of people who till the soil.

SHOPMAN'S WIFE DEFENDS HOME, PISTOL IN HAND

Keeps Strikers at Bay in Front of Home.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Chicago, July 7.—"I'm going to protect this little home of ours even if I have to kill someone to do it."

This was the emphatic declaration today by Mrs. Julia Gabel, 45, "the Barbara Fritschie of Burnside," who stood guard with a pistol over a little cottage in Burnside and staunchly upheld her husband in his decision to return to work in the shops of the Illinois Central Railroad.

At a street corner nearby, a score of striking shopmen congregated, scowling menacingly at the Gabel cottage. Some of them had been members of the mob that attempted to storm the little home last night. Mrs. Gabel, armed with a gun, stepped onto her front porch and defied them to molest her.

When Mrs. Gabel awoke this morning, however, she found that twenty of her flock of chickens were dead—poisoned.

"We've got to pay for our home," said Mrs. Gabel today. "Our savings are almost gone. We have counted for years on the pension John will get from the railroad.

"Now they call a strike. We've got to live. John was in the hospital with pneumonia for several months. We must meet our bills. We must get along some way. John is 59 years old and he's not as strong as he used to be. I told him to go back to work.

"I'm going to protect our little home at all costs. If I have to kill someone to do it, I will kill."

CAPPER PREDICTS LONG INACTION ON FORD OFFER

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, July 7.—The dream of Henry Ford for creation of a monster industrial community at Muscles Shoals, Ala., through control of the government's waterpower project there, will not materialize during the current session of congress, Senator Arthur Capper, Republican, of Kansas, chairman of the senate agriculture "bloc," predicted today.

Although both the senate and house agreed to delay resumption of government construction on the project until October 1, in order to get an opportunity to vote on Ford's offer, Capper declared congress would not reach a decision on it this year.

"It is also doubtful whether a decision will be reached at the next session of congress which begins in December," Capper said.

SENATE GIVES BONUSES TO CIVILIAN EMPLOYES

Why Not to Ex-Service Men, Asks American Legion.

Editor, The Freeman:

The following information has come to my attention and I thought perhaps you would not hesitate to convey it to the readers of your paper who are pro or con for the Adjusted Compensation Bill soon to be taken up by the United States senate.

The tariff bill has continued to occupy the greater part of the senate's time, the senate being anxious and determined to dispose of both the compensation bill and the tariff bill before adjournment or recess, so that reasonably prompt action will be had upon the tariff bill.

It is interesting to note that during the past week the senate laid the tariff bill aside long enough to pass the regular house appropriation bill authorizing the payment of a yearly bonus of $240 to government employes. The total authorized in this bill for bonuses to civilian employes of the government was $37,241,012. Senator Warren of Wyoming, chairman of the senate appropriation committee, who is a violent opponent of the adjusted compensation bill for ex-service men and women, urged the passage of this legislation to appropriate about $38,000,000 for civilian employes of the government. Senator Calder of New York, who is opposed to adjusted compensation for all ex-service men and women, introduced a motion to appropriate $4,000,000 for bonuses for navy yard employes who did not serve in either the army or the navy during the late war. His motion was defeated. In fact, all the senators who are opposed to adjusted compensation voted for this appropriation of approximately $38,000,000 for civilian employes of the government. Senators apparently believe that civilian employes of the government are entitled to a yearly bonus, but oppose adjusted compensation for ex-service men and women who have not only served this government faithfully but have made it possible for all nations to realize the benefits of peace, and it should be remembered too that these ex-service men and women today are suffering the same economic hardship that still exists almost four years after the signing of the armistice.

Yours, truly,
EUGENE B. CAREY,
State Committeeman, American Legion.

England Preparing to Pay?

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, July 7.—The report of the Bank of England, published today, shows a reduction of $2,500,00. in gold holdings. This led to reports in financial circles that this gold will be shipped to the United States and that already initial plans are under way for the beginning of debt payments.

The Temperature.

The lowest point registered by The Freeman's thermometer last night was 61 degrees. The highest point reached up until noon today was 85 degrees.

Weather Forecast.

Washington, July 7.—Increasing cloudiness, followed by showers and thunderstorms Saturday, and in the interior late tonight, warmer in south portion tonight; cooler Saturday afternoon; fresh, possibly strong south and southwest winds.

Fish Jump to Their Doom.

Siamese fishermen do most of their fishing by means of what is known as a ghost boat. This, explains the Detroit News, consists of a long board, painted white, and arranged in position in the water. The top must not be too high above the surface of the water for the fish it is desired to capture to leap over. When in position the ghost resembles very much the white side of a boat or punt. The fish, seeing this white board, become frightened, and in fear they leap over the board. At the back of the board, however, nets are arranged in such a position that those fish that succeed in leaping the board land in the nets and are caught. The amount of fish caught by the employment of ghost boats is very large indeed, and the method has the advantage of preventing the smaller fry from getting into the nets, as they are unable to leap over the board.

Patagonian Game.

Oddly enough, it is on the immense plain at the southeastern foot of the Cordillera de los Andes the wild horses or mustangs are easiest found and the guanaco abounds. Hither the Tehueiches travel for the hunting. The guanaco is of use to the Indians in every way. The flesh of it is excellent eating, and made into a kind of pemmican that is eaten when the tribe is on the march; the skin is used for clothes for the toldos; the sinews serve as a thread; the skin of the neck furnishes thongs for bolas and bridles; the skin of the hough supplies them with a kind of moccasin shoe, and from the bones they cut spoons, cups, dice and make their favorite instrument.—Boys' Life.

Bat's Wonderful Wings.

Naturalists in experimenting with bats have whirled a cane over their head so rapidly that the cane appeared to be a misty funnel. On their heads they wore caps of vivid colors that bats dislike and would frequently fly at. The bats would rush at them until the whirling cane was reached and then dart down, touch the cap and fly away, passing between the orbit of the cane without being touched, demonstrating a keenness of observation and delicacy of speed judgment unequaled by any other living animal. To make this the more unusual the bats eyes are dim and weak, and it depends almost entirely upon the sensitiveness of its wings.

Intelligent Fig Tree.

Fig trees are extremely sensitive to cold, the slightest touch of "Jack Frost" being sufficient to kill the trees. Seldom do they bear or mature fruit above the latitude of Louisiana, writes George Parke in the American Forestry Magazine. But a fig tree, planted beside a mud-and-stick chimney of a negro's cabin near Jackson, Miss., clung so closely to the warm surface, passing round between the side of the building and thence to the top, above which the shoots are seen like a crown of emerald. Thus the tree endured the frost and occasional snow of a severe winter, bore fruit and thrived amid inhospitable surroundings.

Cause of Forest Fires.

Of thousands of fires only a fraction are due to lightning and unpreventable accident, says the American Forestry Magazine of Washington, which adds that the great majority of the fires that are constantly enlarging our deserts of barren sand, scrub oak, chaparral and briers, are due to the carelessness of human beings—due, not only to the carelessness of persons who are directly responsible for the fires, but to the indifference of the great body of people whose composite opinion permits the campers, the farmers, the railroads, and others to start and leave or lose control of the fires that do the damage.

Animals Cure Physical Ills.

It hardly seems possible that animals can carry their knowledge of surgery to the extent of curing a sore or wounded eye, yet such is the case. One so injured will find a dark room—a cave or a hollow tree or perhaps a hollow in the ground—lie on its back and continually licking one of its forefeet, apply the damp to the injured optic and, between the darkness and the poulticelike application of the moistened paw, will recover as surely and as rapidly as if in a private hospital attended by an eminent surgeon; with the advantage of having no excessive bills to pay.—Exchange.

Success Is Earned.

There is no easy way to success. The men who get there earn their passage. One who would arrive must pay the price. Truisms? Platitudes? Granted. But the fact remains. Success means long hours of labor and little sleep while one is on the way. It means tired eyes and the ache of muscles, struggle to the point of utter exhaustion, patience and unflagging zeal, and a determination that never wavers. It means a perennial refusal to be satisfied with the achievement of today, and a determination to generate a little more steam tomorrow.—Country Gentleman.

STEALS DERRICK, FINDS OIL WELL

Spectacular Exploit of Notorious Bandit in Mexico.

GETS 60,000 BARREL SPOUTER

"Monte" Michaels, Much Feared Vera Cruz Desperado, Grabs Choice Piece of Oil Land, Steals Derrick and Holds Off Soldiers While He Drills—Pipe Line Companies Refuse to Handle His Oil at Any Price—Finally Meets Death While Robbing Ranch.

It is no ordinary bandit who is able to lay false claim to a piece of choice oil land, steal a derrick, drilling outfit and all other necessary equipment, put down the well himself and have the luck to bring in a 60,000-barrel producer.

That was only one of the many daring and spectacular exploits performed by "Monte" Michaels during his tempestuous career in the oil fields of the Gulf Coast region of Mexico. He met his death a few days ago on the ranch of E. L. Doheny of Los Angeles, Cal., and associates at the home of the superintendent, Ed Watt, near Ebano, Mex. Michaels was attempting to break into the ranch house for the purpose of robbery when he was shot through the head by Watt.

Generally Feared.

Although banditry has been more or less rife in Mexico for many years, no native leader of these lawless forces was ever more feared in the territory where he operated than was "Monte" Michaels.

Nothing is known here about Michael's life before he came to the oil fields.

For a time Michaels led a comparatively quiet life in the different oil camps of the Tampico region. Then he began frequenting the cantinas and gambling halls. His favorite game of chance was monte and his success at times in winning considerable sums of money caused him to be given the nickname of "Monte" Michaels. By this time he was lording it over the oil camps, wherever he happened to be.

Finally, Michaels got ready to make his big stake. When the discovery of oil was made at Amatlan by the bringing in of a well of 80,000 barrels, this daring American driller went to the new pool and pitched his tent on a block of land which was owned by the Pantepec Petroleum company. He marked off the boundaries and gave out the statement that he proposed to drill a well upon the property. The Pantepec Petroleum company sought first by peaceful means to get Michaels off of the land. He refused to move. An appeal to the courts was made by the company and a writ of ouster was obtained. When the officers of the law sought to enforce the writ they were met by Michaels, who smilingly stepped out of his tent with a rifle carelessly thrown across the elbow of his left arm. He told the men that he would kill the first one that crossed the boundary line of the block. The officers retired.

Collects a Force.

One night he collected a force of Mexicans and hauled the timbers of a derrick, engine and well-drilling equipment, all belonging to a company that was preparing to drill a well on a near-by location, and placed them upon the plot of land where he was squatted. In a short time he had the derrick up and the drilling of the well started. Michaels was well known as one of the most expert drillers in Mexico. The bandit surrounded himself with an armed guard of Mexican outlaws while he directed the drilling of the well. He even stood up against an attack of soldiers to drive him from the spot. Then came the day when from the hole there spurted a column of oil—60,000 barrels a day was the output. Near at hand were gathering pipe lines of several big companies. Michaels sent word to them that he wanted to connect up his well with the pipe lines. The word came back from all of them that they would not buy or handle his oil. Appeal after appeal was made by the bandit for a buyer of his oil. He even offered to sell the output for 10 cents a barrel, which at that price would have brought him a daily revenue of $6,000, but there were no takers.

COURTSHIP BY MAIL

There Was a Wedding After Fourteen Years of It.

A courtship by mail of 14 years' duration resulted in the marriage of W. A. Fowler of Halfway, Ore., and Miss Linda Free, Milwaukee, Wis.

The bridegroom is seventy-five years old and the bride sixty-eight. Added romance was given the courtship by the failure of the marriage license to arrive by stage mail from Baker in time for the wedding to be performed on the date originally set.

On account of the bride not being known at Halfway or Baker, the license clerk would not issue the permit, and the wedding was postponed until the legal requirements could be met.

WHY CY CONNORS TOSSED THURSDAY

Captain Harry E. Schirick of the Colonials in explaining the weird exhibition put up by the locals at Green Island on Thursday afternoon said that McAuliffe and Culloton were not in condition to pitch and when Stoudt was unable to hold down the Kaysees the only available man to put in the pitcher's box was Cy Connors. He said that the Colonials had an off day and the strain proved too great for them. Poor pitching and the inability of the locals to hit Hickey safely was the principal cause of the defeat but the Colonials expected to obtain revenge when the return game was staged here later.

DUNDEE FAR TOO GOOD FOR JACK SHARKEY

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, July 7.—Johnny Dundee, the aged gladiator who rejoices in the possession of the junior lightweight championship, demonstrated last night at Ebbets Field, when he defeated Jack Sharkey in fifteen more or less exciting rounds, that it will take a nifty boxer to relieve him of his title.

He completely outclassed Jack Sharkey. One of the mysteries of the match was the apparent belief on the part of Sharkey that he had a chance to defeat a man who has baffled the most formidable lightweights in the world.

The champion hit Sharkey on the jaw a sufficient number of times to stop a battalion of 130 pounders, but the West Sider never was knocked off his feet. He slipped to the floor several times but was in good condition, albeit a bit weary at the bell that ended the fifteenth round.

Elephant Sprinters.

In spite of the great bulk and lumbering gait, the elephant has been known to exceed 15 miles an hour and to have kept up a rate of ten miles an hour for a long time. It is said that an elephant does not reach proper maturity until it is 40 years old, and that it may live for over a century. Darwin calculated that after a period of 750 years, if breeding were not interfered with, there would be 19,000,000 elephants alive, descended from a single pair. The tusks which are the weapons of the males in their furious combats, are used by both sexes in everyday life for digging up roots for food.

LADYBUG

"Dear me, dear," said little Miss Ladybug, "I am certainly all a-flutter. Of course it is hard to be all a-flutter when one is a bug, but I mean that my heart is beating fast in its little bug fashion.

"Ah, yes, ah yes, I am quite excited, for I have a new spring bonnet. I found it in the Farmyard, not far from the Potato Patch. It is brown and has white trimmings. It is a very handsome hat.

"And I will tell you why I am a-flutter in my heart. Sir Benjamin Bug, a worthy creature, but rather dull, has always told me that he admired me. I do not care for Sir Benjamin. I like Sir Basil Bug.

"Sir Benjamin told me I would not be happy if I wed Sir Basil. Both these fine bugs had paid me the great compliment of asking me.

"Now I had decided I would wed Sir Basil. I had told Sir Basil yes, and I had told Sir Benjamin no.

"But dear me, the next time I saw Sir Benjamin I looked sad and downcast. My bonnet was shabby, I had not brushed my garments, and I looked sad and untidy.

"'Ha, ha,' said Sir Benjamin, 'it is as I said. You are already sorry that you have consented to wed Sir Basil.'

"'Not a bit of it, not a bit of it. You do not speak the truth, I said.'

"But I knew that I looked so untidy

"Ha, Ha," Said Sir Benjamin.

that I did look sad. And I felt worried and bothered about something.

"I could not think of anything to say. I kept thinking of my wretched old appearance and how bad it was not to look nice and neat and tidy.

"Well, Sir Benjamin crawled away after a time. When I saw Sir Basil I had made myself look quite tidy.

"And I told him what had happened.

"I told him how bad I felt because I was so untidy that I was ashamed that Sir Benjamin saw me and thought it was because I was worrying and regretting that I had not decided to wed him.

"Sir Basil laughed right heartily in his delicious bug fashion.

"'Ah, you are a real ladybug,' he chuckled, 'they say the ladies always care about how they look, you know. And of course you wanted to look beautiful and make Sir Benjamin feel sad. I do not blame you.'

"Sir Basil enjoyed laughing and I did not mind, for Sir Basil's bug laughter is sweet to my ears.

"But now I am all a-flutter, because I was looking my best and I saw Sir Benjamin and he looked very downcast to see me looking so merry and gay.

"And tomorrow I am going to wed Sir Basil and happy, indeed, I am.

"In fact I am so happy that I think I will sing this song:

I am Mistress Ladybug, Mistress Ladybug, Mistress Ladybug.
I feel a tug, feel a tug, feel a tug.
I feel it at my heart, at my heart, at my heart,
For through it has gone love's dart, love's dart, loves dart!
I love a handsome bug, handsome bug, handsome bug,
I'll give him a shaving mug, shaving mug, shaving mug.
It will be a wedding gift, wedding gift, wedding gift,
I know you get the drift, get the drift, get the drift,
That I'm to be a bride, be a bride, be a bride,
And Sir Basil Bug will be by my side, by my side, by my side.

"Ah," laughed Miss Ladybug, "I am not a poet and I am not a poetess. I suppose one is the same as the other. But I am neither!

"But when one is in love one must write verse. Ah yes, I must write verse.

I'm after all, nothing but a bug.
I can make a rhyme about that.
Although it's a mighty poor verse,
It might be worse, it might be worse.
You can't expect too much of me,
That I hope you surely see!
I'm to be wedded tomorrow,
And my bug heart knows no sorrow!
Ha, ha, happy am I.
This I most joyfully cry!"

Poor Father.

Young Tommy had been rather unruly, and as his father was a somewhat hefty person it was with fear that Tommy followed him to the study.

Pa was not long in commencing hostilities, but, to his great surprise, no sooner did he begin to ply the slipper than Tommy started to laugh.

The harder his father smote, the louder laughed the victim; until at last father demanded the cause of it.

"Why," said his son, "you say it hurts you more than it hurts me, and I'm just thinking how you're going through it!"—Glasgow Herald.

FOODS FOR HOT WEATHER.

Nature supplies the food needed for each season. In summer we have plenty of fresh fruits and vegetables.

Chilling the stomach with ices and cold drinks is not the way to keep cool. A hot soup or something hot at the beginning of the meal will start the sluggish stomach so that it will more quickly assimilate food.

During warm weather we reduce the amount of meat consumed, but do not eliminate it entirely.

Spiced beef is a dish especially good for a hot weather dish, but is very uncommon. Try it.

Virginia Spiced Beef.—Take a sirloin of beef or a rump piece that has been in the pickle eight days. Put in a kettle of cold water over a slow fire. Skim thoroughly, put in a lemon or two with the seeds removed, two bay leaves, a dozen peppercorns and two tablespoonfuls of tarragon vinegar. Let the meat cook slowly until tender, then allow it to remain all night in the water in which it was cooked. Remove and place the meat under a weight.

Ham Mousse.—Soften a tablespoonful of gelatin in enough cold water to cover, pour over it a cupful of boiling stock, stir until dissolved, strain and pour the liquid over two cupfuls of chopped ham, stand aside until it begins to congeal, then fold in a cupful of whipped cream and turn the mixture into a wet mold. Serve when hard on lettuce.

A cupful of nuts added to the regulation potato salad will make of it a dish sufficiently satisfying for the main dish.

Stuff tomatoes with bread crumbs and cheese. Pour a dish of seasoned stewed tomatoes over a dish containing a few uncooked eggs, stir with a fork, season and serve.

For a hot weather luncheon or dinner serve a dish of soup hot and well seasoned, a boiled fish with tartar sauce, bread and butter sandwiches with chilled fruit and cookies for dessert or a dish of ice or sherbet.

Robin Gets the Worm.

Robins are growing fat on worms in Lafayette square.

The grass there must be literally alive with worms, for no robin seems to have any difficulty whatever in picking up the best kind of living.

You will see one of the birds hop along, then suddenly reach down.

He begins to pull.

Up comes his head with a worm dangling to his beak, one end of the worm held tenaciously by the robin, the other clinging fast to mother earth.

Bracing himself the bird throws his entire weight in one final heave. He then consumes half the worm, and flies away with the remainder.

The performance does not strike one as cruel, for both bird and worm are operating under the laws of nature.—Washington Star.

How to Make and Use It — By A. HYATT VERRILL

XXIV. AN EFFICIENT 5-WATT TRANSMITTER

For those who wish a more powerful and efficient set for sending this is to be highly recommended. Under favorable conditions it should have a range of from 25 to 40 miles. Moreover, it is not an expensive set to make and, exclusive of batteries, should not cost over $35.00 to $45.00. The diagram as given in Fig. 60, makes the wiring very plain, A being the aerial, B the ground, C the ammeter, D the inductance, E the variable condenser, F the fixed condenser, G the grid-leak, H the modulation transformer, K the grid, L the plate, M the rheostat, N the choke-coil, O the rectifier, P the current transformer.

Although practically every part of this set can be made, with the exception of the ammeter, rheostat, microphone, and modulation transformer coil, still it is almost as cheap and much more satisfactory to purchase the current transformer, the variable condenser and the choke-coil. The inductance D is easily made, the plate coil being wound with No. 18 cotton insulated wire on a cardboard tube three and one-half inches in diameter, using twenty-six turns and is tapped at the thirteenth turn. The aerial coil is the same size of wire, but with only eight turns. The space between windings or turns should be about one-half inch. The choke-coil may be purchased as such, but an ordinary spark coil—using the secondary winding—may be used and an old Ford spark coil with contact-breaker screwed down may be used for the modulation transformer. The ammeter used should be one of low reading scale or, if desired, an ordinary 3 volt flashlight bulb may be used instead. The ammeter, however, will give far better results. The grid-leak is an ordinary lead pencil leak of medium soft lead. The most difficult part to make is the current rectifier, but even this is very simple and consists merely of eight pint fruit jars filled with a solution of ordinary borax in the proportion of half a pound of borax to ten pints of water. In filling the jars avoid having any undissolved borax or sediment in them, and fill only about three-fourths full. The plates consist of alternate lead and aluminum strips, eight of each alternating as shown in Fig. 61, and with each plate 5 x ¾ inches. With this rectifier and the current transformer P, an ordinary 110 volt, 60 cycle electric current may be used, or without these, two or three B-batteries may be used instead, but this is far more expensive and does not give as good results. Before using this outfit the rectifier must be treated to form the plates, which is accomplished by connecting an ordinary 50 watt incandescent bulb and letting the 110 volt current run through it for ten or twelve hours.

Another point to remember is always to disconnect the high voltage current from the plate when not in use and when using the set always light the filament in the tube with the low voltage battery before turning on the high voltage current. The switch on the microphone circuit also should always be thrown off, thus disconnecting the phone from the battery, when not in use. To tune this set it is only necessary to adjust the variable condenser until the ammeter or flashlight shows the highest reading.

STATE HAS GREAT VACATION LAND

Syracuse, N. Y., July 7—The Adirondacks and Catskills include the largest State Park exclusively for recreation and water shed protection in the United States. It practically embraces 4,000,000 acres of private and state land, about 2,000,000 of which is owned by the state.

New York state is not generally looked upon as a great summer resort. It has, however, the most popular and extensive single state-attraction to vacationists; the most available, valuable and beautiful. Approximately 20,000,000 persons are within twelve hours' ride of this great recreation park. This area, public and private, will represent at a conservative figure $40,000,000 in forest land

It has been estimated that the visitors to the Adirondacks each year spend at least $20,000,000. On the basis of the wild game taken from this region annually, the game alone represents a capital of $53,000,000.

The Adirondacks and Catskills supply water and power to eight large rivers and many cities, including New York. The Adirondacks alone have more than 1,200 ponds and lakes, many of which are of surpassing beauty and forty mountain peaks over four thousand feet high.

If there were no great economic considerations, and there are many, for perpetuating this wild forest country, it would still be one of the most valuable natural assets in the state as a playground and for this reason alone it should be carefully used and protected by those who receive so many material benefits from its beauty—New York State College of Forestry Bulletin

Burning Feet, Corns and Callouses Halt Mrs. Doyer

On long hike from Boston to Los Angeles

Reaches New York Where Foot Troubles Threaten To End Strenuous Journey. Tells How She Outwitted Pains From Sore, Burning Feet, Corns and Bunions with

GYPSY FOOT RELIEF

A Wonderful Secret From the Desert

AFTER shaking hands with Governor Cox, of Massachusetts and Mayor Curley, of Boston, Mrs. Belle Doyer and her fifteen-year old son started their long hike from Boston to Los Angeles, California, with nothing but jack-knives in their pockets and walking sticks for protection on their strenuous journey. Dressed in khaki uniforms, they reached New York City in good time, where Mrs. Doyer's burning feet, corns and the appearance of a red-sore bunion threatened to halt her intended record-making expedition. But hearing of the wonders performed by Gypsy Foot Relief, Mrs. Doyer obtained a box and anxiously put it to the test, for here was an aggravated condition of foot troubles calling for immediate relief, and she must make good her slogan of "reach-Los Angeles-by-foot-or-die!" How Mrs. Doyer succeeded is best told in her own words in an interview, just before leaving New York to continue her 3,300 mile foot-trip. She said:—"When we reached New York City, in good time, my feet were burning, sore and aching, callouses had formed and two corns and a sore bunion made their appearance. I thought I would have to give up my "reach-California-or-foot-or-die" program. Hearing about the wonders of Gypsy Foot Relief, I obtained a box and applied it that afternoon, and that night, and the next morning, and to my surprise, my feet felt as if they had new life; the burning and aches had ceased, the soreness had gone and the pains from corns and bunions had disappeared as if by magic. I started on my long hike again and now that I have some Gypsy Foot Relief, I am sure I will reach Los Angeles without any more foot troubles or misery.

NOTE:—Gypsy Foot Relief, mentioned by Mrs. Doyer, is a secret from the desert. Applied in a minute, relief comes a few minutes later! The awful pains from burning, calloused feet, corns, and bunions seem to disappear as if by magic! No bother to apply—no plasters—no powders—no soaking feet in medicated baths—no fuss! Simply apply it as directed, then put on your shoes and walk, run or dance as long as you wish, or work and stay on your feet as long as you like! So remarkable are the reports of Gypsy Foot Relief from different parts of the country, that the makers guarantee successful results in every case—or you get back the little it costs! It is sold in this city by all good druggists, including

CROSS TOMATOES, INCREASE YIELD

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Geneva, N. Y., July 7.—Careful studies of the effect of crossing different varieties and strains of tomatoes is a sound commercial proposition and that the farmer, as well as the seedsman, can profitably raise hybrid seed. Plants grown from seed secured in this way were more productive and vigorous and were larger than the parent varieties. However, the improvement decreased materially with each succeeding generation so that it is not wise to use seed from the hybrid fruit itself. On the other hand, it is well established that tomato seed germinates freely for three years or more so that a good supply of seed from some cross that has proved its worth may be disposed of at a good price over a period of years, thus offsetting, to some extent, the time and care required to produce the seed.

"The tomato, like all other plants," say the experts, "shows certain definite reactions to cross pollination; and, if the plant breeder is familiar with these reactions, he can govern, to a large extent, the color, size and shape of the hybrid. Only high yielding parents should be selected for crossing.

"It is now known that dark red color is dominant over pink and yellow. In order to secure red fruit, therefore, one parent must be red while the other may be red, pink or yellow. To obtain a pink tomato one parent must be pink and the other either pink or yellow, while to obtain a yellow fruit both parents must be yellow. Large fruits should be crossed to obtain large fruit, and small fruits to obain small fruit. A cross between large and small-fruited parents will give fruit of intermediate size, so that only those varieties should be used which conform rather closely to the desired shape. Earliness is slightly increased by crossing, but to obtain marked differences early maturing varieties or strains must be used. In striving to secure an early hybrid care must be exercised that other undesirable characters are not introduced which may offset any gain in earliness.

"The best results of crossing can probably be obtained by keeping within a species and crossing the distinct varieties and strains. For the insurance of securing a desirable commercial tomato, one must keep in mind the inheritance of such qualities as smoothness, color, size, shape and earliness. Crosses which give an early, smooth, red fruit are Earliana by Stone and June Pink by Stone, the varieties being used interchangeably as male and female parents without affecting the results."

SPARKS'S COLLECTION SHOWS HOW HORSE IS PASSING

How horses have been supplanted by the automobile in both city and country is vividly shown by a remarkable collection of circus photographs owned by Charles Sparks, manager of the Sparks Circus which comes to Kingston next Tuesday. It was this collection of pictures, dating back to the days before the Civil War which led Mr. Sparks to devote his country estate near Macon, Ga., to the raising and training of thoroughbred horses, until today his stables are valued at more than $100,000. Many of the circus photographs were taken by Brady, the official Civil War photographer, and they bear ample witness to the extent horses were used before the advent of the flivver and its big brothers.

The pictures show that almost everyone who visited the parade and the circus grounds in those days came in a rig of some sort. These ranged from one-horse shays, driven by farmers, to smart four-in-hands in which Beau Brummels of the day drove their lady loves to the big tent shows. In some sections, whole families were bought to town in picturesque prairie schooners. A close study of the photographs showed that not only had some types of horses vanished almost entirely, but in many of the pictures taken in the past few years there is not a horse to be seen, although there are autos in abundance.

Mr. Sparks believes that everybody loves a horse, and because of their scarcity, fine horses are becoming more of a real attraction to circus-goers every year, and this season he had added several carloads of the finest horses obtainable to the circus. Hundreds of these fine animals will be seen in the mile-long street parade on circus day morning. The main performances will commence at 2 and 8 p. m. Visitors will be admitted one hour earlier to view the well-selected zoological collection.

SPINDLE'S HIT BROKE DROUGHT

Three Weeks' Dry Spell in Mountains Broken When Spindle Ray of the Gallupers Drove a Hit High in the Air Winning Game and Bringing Rain.

"Talking about the wet spell we have been having," said the Old Fan "reminds me of the long dry spell they had in the mountains when the Gallupers and the Busters were fighting it out for first place in the Mountain League.

"How's that?" asked the Young Fan scenting another yarn.

"It was so dry," continued the Old Fan "that it was dangerous to even smoke a pipe out in the air for the heat of the pipe would be liable to ignite the atmosphere with disastrous consequences. They had not had rain for over three weeks and were fearful that some one might accidentally drop a cigarette butt in the grass setting the mountains on fire.

"All the time of the drought there was plenty of rain falling in other places, but it seemed to skip the mountain region. Whenever a rain cloud was seen it was floating by so high in the air that the rain did not have a chance to fall."

"It was while the drought was at its height that the Busters came to the Gallupers' home lot to play off a series of games. The third and deciding game was being staged on the afternoon of which I am speaking. Each team had acquired one game and each was determined to make it two out of the three.

"The third game was a hummer. It had gone along in ding dong style for eight innings, and the Busters opened the ninth at bat, but were unable to score. The Gallupers' chances looked slim also when Captain Twin Gormley of the Busters struck out the first two to face him.

"Then up to the plate stepped Spindle Ray, the lighting short stop of the Gallupers. Spindle was an erratic hitter. Some days he would think nothing of bagging a homer or two, but that afternoon he had accumulated nothing but strikeouts. He was not disturbed, however, for he believed he was about due to land a hit.

"His belief was justified when he caught one of Twin's drops on the end of his stick and lifted her skyward. Boy that sure was some hit. Higher and higher it sailed with the speed of a bullet and the eye could scarcely follow its flight. At the same time one of the elusive rain clouds was drifting across the horizon.

"Whether you believe it or not that hit ball struck the rain cloud with such force that it caused the cloud to double up and drop its contents earthward. That cloud contained so much moisture that rain fell all that week, and folks began to get scared as the mountain streams overflowed their banks and every one was fearful of a flood.

"Who won the game?"

"I forgot to say that Spindle's hit not only broke the drought but it won the game for the Gallupers, the final score being 1 to 0.

Recipes kept on cards and filed alphabetically are easy to use and the system allows for expansion and revision.

INTERNAL REVENUE MAN HERE SOON TO HELP TAXPAYERS

All Federal special taxes are now due from owners of automobiles for hire, from dealers in narcotics, owners of pool tables, makers of oleomargarine and retail dealers in liquors (druggists), and in order to assist those liable for the special taxes a special agent of the internal revenue department will be at the court house in this city, Monday, July 17, from 9 a. m. to 5:30 p. m., to assist those who may desire his aid in making out their return blanks.

"Seventh Crusade."

If you were on the Mount of Olives today, or along the shores of the Jordan, you might hear the whirl of the propeller as the plane from Jerusalem hops off on its regular flight to the northward, with mail and passengers. An appealing fact in the news of the day! It might be called the Seventh Crusade. The thinker has at least captured the Holy land, which for 20 centuries successfully resisted the soldier.—Farm Life.

THE OFFICE CAT

Despite the alleged shortage of money, there is no let-up in the business of buying and selling gold bricks.

He—If I should kiss you, what would you do?

She—I never meet an emergency until the occasion arises.

He—Well, if the emergency arose this very minute, how would you meet it?

She—Meet it face to face.

Deucedly Clever.

A young Englishman was walking up and down the platform of a country railroad junction, trying to see a car that had a vacant seat. He didn't find it, and assuming an official air, he walked up to the last car and announced in stentorian tones:

"All out here; this car isn't going."

There were exclamations low and deep from the occupants of the car, but they all piled out and made their way to cars ahead. The smile on the young man's face increased as he took possession of a seat and appropriated another for his luggage.

Ah," he murmured. "It's a grand thing to be born clever! Now I wish they'd start."

"By and by the station master put his head in at the door: "Are you the smart young man who said this car wasn't going?"

"Yes," said the clever one, smiling.

"Well," said the station master, with a grin also, "it isn't. The brakeman heard what you said and he uncoupled it. He thought you were a director."

The man who says sugar is the sweetest thing known never slept until 10 o'clock in the morning.

"I-I-feel awful inside," groaned Johnny,

"What do you think it is?" asked his mother.

"Oh," wailed Johnny, "I had French peas and German sausage at auntie's yesterday, and now they seem to be fighting along my whole front."

WE FEED THE WORLD.

But Neglect to Use Our Own Share of Bread.

A scientist of nationwide reputation states that in our national diet cereals (bread) could well supply 50 per cent and dairy products 20 per cent of the individual diet. Real value is based on what any commodity gives, not on what it costs in dollars and cents. Bread, judged by this standard, would be at almost any price our cheapest food.

Bread has been called "the token of civilization." And the rapid strides in progress which the western world has made over the Orient is by many students attributed to the fact that bread is a more complete food than rice. Wheat is the cereal par excellence in the baking of bread of the type which the entire modern world seems to crave. Half the world is dependent upon the United States for wheat to supply this highly nutritious food.

Such vast agricultural resources make this country a great humanitarian power in supplying the sustenance that makes human beings in all parts of the world more efficient.

But while we are supplying other nations with wheat for their bread, we are neglecting a golden opportunity to make the most of bread in our own diet. One noted authority says that if the consumption of bread in the United States were increased even up to 35 per cent of the diet, people would generally be better off as to health, and the cost of living would be percentibly lessened.

We can well afford to learn a food lesson from the many European countries whose populations secure fully 60 per cent of their diet in the form of bread.

ULSTER WOMEN BUY GOVERNMENT SECURITIES

Investments in U. S. Treasury Certificates continue to increase at the Kingston post office from the savings of the people of Kingston and Ulster county. Postmaster DeWitt, who is also chairman of government loan organization, this district, reports that the first investments of the new year were by thrifty ladies and this has been the case in April, May, June and the present month. On July 5 one woman alone invested $3,200 for which she will receive $4,000 in five years. Mr. DeWitt hopes to hear from many others this month, both men and women. The treasury department at Washington and the government loan bureau at New York are well pleased with the results in Kingston and vicinity so far this year. These certificates can be purchased at uptown and Rondout stations and at the main post office, are redeemable, are registered and perfectly safe in the event of fire or loss.

DULUTH IMPERIAL FLOUR

FORTY YEARS ONE IDEAL

For more than forty years we have steadfastly followed the ideal of perfection as near as possible, in the milling of DULUTH IMPERIAL FLOUR.

Year after year certain improvements have been accomplished. Each year a higher quality which makes the demand for DULUTH IMPERIAL FLOUR greater.

Though our mills now have a daily output of 5,700 barrels, careful distribution is necessary that all may be supplied.

GUM-DIPPED CORDS
-and Their High Mileage Records

The high mileage records of Firestone Cords continue to emphasize the fact that Firestone methods are different and better. These records, steadily increasing in number and in mileage totals, justify the Firestone contention that there is one best way to build tires.

Among the primary sources of Firestone extra mileage is double gum-dipping—the saturation of the cord plies in a vat of liquid gum—thus coating each cord and virtually eliminating internal heat and friction

Another is Firestone air bag curing, with its 200 pound pressure, which places every cord accurately and equalizes the tension

By blending the rubbers of different plantations and types, and by tempering it before mixing, Firestone men add still more mileage

Many cord tires are good—a few are better—Firestone users say one is best.

Those who have already experienced Firestone mileage, have stopped shopping and experimenting—they have made these cords standard equipment Investigate your friends' success with Firestone Cords—and buy your next tire accordingly. Come in and get your share of extra mileage.

IRISH YOUTH IS "JOINING UP"

Collins Finds Plenty of Recruits to Fight Rebels—De Valera Reported Near Blessington, Wounded.

By Telegraph to The Freeman

Dublin, July 7.—Although there was desultory sniping throughout Dublin today, the city is quickly resuming normal life. Hundreds of youths are responding to Michael Collins's call for volunteers and are enlisting in the Regular army for six months active service against the rebels in the provinces.

An unconfirmed report is in circulation that Eamonn de Valera commander-in-chief of the Republican Irregulars, has been wounded. De Valera is understood to be near Blessington, in the northern part of County Wicklow, at the head of a band of rebels.

More than 700 Irregulars are held prisoner here by the Free Staters.

The campaign against the Irregulars outside of Dublin is now in full swing. Regulars are rounding up guerilla bands in the hills of Dublin county.

The Free Staters now claim control of County Roscommon, County Longford, East Mayo, County Westmeath and County Sligo.

Irregulars who were defeated in a sharp engagement at Delvin, fled to Boyle, in County Roscommon, where they made a stubborn stand, but were dispersed.

As the volunteers enlist, they are being sent to training camps for a period of intensive preparation for their duty.

Free State troops were victorious in a three-hour battle with Irregulars at Boyle, according to a Dublin despatch to the Star.

Blessington, near the border of County Wicklow and County Dublin, has been captured from the Irregulars by Free Staters. Early reports put De Valera in that district.

Five British warships have dropped anchor in Cork harbor. Cork has now succeeded Dublin as the hotbed against the Irish provisional government.

The cuckoo seems to have the ability to lay eggs of the same size as those already in the nest, whether they are large or small.

COFFEY AWARDED JUDGE'S DECISION

Return Bout With Laureate in Troy Disappoints Crowd of 3,500 By Its Lack of Speed.

Vincent Coffey, Kingston welterweight duplicated his victory of several weeks ago over Frankie Laureate of Troy by gaining the judges' decision in a slow and uninteresting twelve round bout Thursday night at the boxing show staged in Bolton hall, Troy, for the benefit of Lansingburg council, Knights of Columbus. A crowd estimated at 3,500 jammed the hall and a majority of the spectators booed the boxers continually.

Laureate, who was sent to the floor for counts of nine twice in the first meeting, kept his jaw protected at all times, doing little or no fighting. Several times he opened up for exchanges, especially in the twelfth round, when the two boys stood toe to toe and slugged for about a minute. The last minutes spurt had the crowd on its feet but it could not overshadow the slow work that marked most of the other rounds.

The boys boxed cautiously at the start and two minutes of the first round passed before Coffey landed the first punch, a snort right to the jaw. Coffey forced the fighting in the second and landed lefts and rights to the head and body but the next four rounds were marked by continual clinching. Coffey carried the remaining rounds of the contest, doing what little fighting there was. In the eighth round Coffey caught Laureate flush on the jaw with a hard right and the Troy boy's knees sagged for a moment. Coffey was the aggressor in the closing rounds but seemed unable to land effectively.

25 KINGSTONIANS FOR ARMY CAMPS

A further list of approved applications of Kingston candidates for the Citizens' Military Training Camps which open August 2nd was issued at Governor's Island this week and contained the names of Ferdinand J. Simmons, 389 Washington avenue, Sprague Talbot, 105 Fair street, Frederick L. Anderson, 48 Clinton avenue, Lewis H. Caswell, 124 Washington avenue, and Allen E. Morris, 284 Washington avenue, who will attend the Field Artillery course at Montauk Point, L. I., N. Y. George C. Brown, 199 Smith avenue, has been accepted for the Engineer Camp at Camp Dix, N. J.

Other applications from Kingston remain to be acted upon by the selection board at the Second Corps Area Headquarters. It is expected that a delegation of about twenty-five men from this city will attend the camps this summer.

It was stated at Governor's Island that the three thousand vacancies in the six camps to be held in the Second Corps Area have now been applied for and that no further applications will be considered by the recruiting adjutant, Governor's Island, N. Y., except for alternates to take the places of accepted candidates who find later they can not attend the camps.

The World's Greatest Dam.

Plans have been made to build a dam on the Colorado river which will hold back a volume of water equal to two years' flow of the entire 1,800 miles of rushing river. The dam is to be 700 feet high, approximately the height of the Woolworth building in New York city. The dam will form a reservoir with an area of 200 square miles and an average depth of 350 feet. This body of water will constitute the largest artificial lake in the world. One western railroad system is already planning to operate a fleet of steamers to carry tourists over this man-made lake to the Grand canyon, the wonder spot of American. The Panama canal is the only undertaking ever attempted in America which may be compared in magnitude or boldness of conception to this engineering project, which will transform an empire of waste into a region of productivity.—World's Work.

MANY SUICIDES AMONG SOLDIERS

Former Service Men Killed Selves at Rate of Two Every Day.

WORST WAR CASUALTIES NOW

Troops Wounded on the Battlefields Are Lucky as Compared With Greatly Increased Casualties of Today, Says American Legion Official—War Racked Nerves Couldn't Withstand Mental Anguish of Desperate Struggle to Make Living.

The worst casualties suffered by American soldiers during the World war are just beginning to show themselves. By contrast troops wounded on the battlefields are lucky compared with the greatly increased casualties of today, according to C. J. Harris, an official of the American Legion's national headquarters at Indianapolis, in charge of ex-soldier claims against the government.

There is an average of two ex-soldier suicides a day, Mr. Harris declares, following a study of reports. These men, Mr. Harris finds, almost without exception, were in the battle lines in France. These soldiers, the legion official contends, were discharged by army doctors as normal. Since the war, however, these men, struggling for a living, have undergone mental anguish that their war racked nerves could not withstand.

Two Ways Open.

There are two ways in which the legion hopes to minister to these mental cases and to prevent their increase, Mr. Harris points out. The Langly bill, now law, provides $17,000,000 for the construction of new hospitals. The larger portion of this money is to be spent in creating facilities for treating the neuro-psychiatrics, mental patients. The legion is also preparing to petition congress to liberalize the present Sweet bill. This bill now makes it impossible for an ex-soldier to obtain government treatment for war injuries which show up more than two years after discharge from service. The legion contends that it might easily be five years after discharge before physical and mental effects of his service injuries would appear.

Mr. Harris further charges that the United States Veterans' bureau, in charge of the treatment, and rehabilitation of the World's war disabled, is in error concerning the gravity of the neuro-psychiatric sufferers. A recent bureau report shows that the bureau's total capacity for treatment of neuro-psychiatric cases is 6,099 beds.

Gets Full Reports.

Mr. Harris says he has reports from legion liaison representatives in each of the bureau's 14 regional districts to show that in four of the 14 districts alone there are 24,506 mental cases on record. These four districts include West Virginia, District of Columbia, Virginia, Tennessee, North Carolina, South Carolina, Maryland, Florida, Georgia, Nebraska, Iowa, Kansas, Missouri, Washington, Oregon and Idaho. Of the number 2,119 are being treated in government hospitals and 996 in contract institutions.

The veterans' bureau reports but 4,628 service men in the entire United States undergoing treatment for mental disorders in government institutions.

The legion is asking the co-operation of the public in its effort properly to protect post-bellum shell shock cases, Mr. Harris says, and friends and relatives should be quick to report an ex-soldier who shows signs of mental disorder, and to induce him to submit to an examination and treatment.

FIND BOTTLE OF NUGGETS

Discovery Leads to Gold Hunt on Slope of Cascade Mountains.

A small bottle of gold nuggets found lying under the skeleton of a man discovered in the woods near Bothnell, 20 miles from Seattle, Wash., has started a stampede for placer claims on creeks and rivers there, and some pans of color are the rule.

It was estimated the skeleton was of a man dead eight to ten years, but at his side were the remnants of mining paraphernalia—pan, pick and shovel. A heavy pocket knife, gold ring and amber bit of a pipe were picked up, in addition to the bottle of nuggets. Rumor at once started the theory that he had prospected near where he died and every available creek, river and lake shore is being examined by mining experts in the hope that the gravel strata from which the dead man took his nuggets may be found.

For years there has been a persistent report that the western slope of the Cascade mountains contained gold-bearing gravel, but no great pocket has ever been found, so far as is known. However, good wages may be made in a long day by working the sands of many of the river beds near here, whose sources are the peaks of the Cascades.

The geologist Suess holds the source of the sea salt was volcanic eruptions, when the earth's crust was beginning to harden it. Eruptions, he says, give forth gaseous compounds containing chlorine, which is brought down by rain.

Where First New Yorker Lived.

Aldrich Court, one of the lower Broadway office buildings of the older type, covers the site of the first structure erected by a white man on Manhattan island. A tablet to this effect is on the present building. At No. 11 Broadway, Capt. Adrain Block built four huts. This settlement preceded the Dutch colonists, who came to establish a trading post in the new world. The present building is the home of the United States shipping board.

Time to Do Something.

Four-year-old Bobby was stroking his cat before the fireplace in perfect content. The cat, almost happy, began to purr loudly. Bobby gazed at her askance for awhile, then suddenly seized her by the tail and dragged her roughly away from the hearth. His mother interposed: "You must not hurt your kitty, Bobby." "I'm not," said Bobby, protestingly, "but I've got to get her from the fire. She's beginning to boil."—The Argonaut.

GREAT INTEREST IN CAMP SITES

Many Towns Take Unusual Care of Touring Motorists.

WEST LEADER IN MOVEMENT

More Than 90 Per Cent of Existing Sites Are Located West of the Mississippi River—Once Started, Idea Spread With Amazing Rapidity—Towns Without Hotel Are Thus Enabled to Make Bid for Share of Tourist Patronage.

The recent remarkable increase in the volume of motor camping has served to call attention to certain features of this interesting subject that have not hitherto received sufficient attention. One of these relates to the establishment of municipal camping sites for the comfort and convenience of campers. Several years ago, when the camping idea was in its infancy, the pioneers of this new phase of motor touring were forced to find their own camp sites, in most instances pitching their tents wherever night overtook them and giving but little heed to the condition of the site selected, except to assure themselves that it was reasonably high and dry.

As time went on, however, and the number of camping motorists increased by leaps and bounds certain enterprising communities in the western states began to realize the commercial possibilities of this new form of motor traffic and decided that it would be to the advantage of all concerned if they were to provide suitable camping grounds immediately adjacent to the business centers of the various towns. Reasoning on the principle that every motoring party is obliged to spend a certain amount of money somewhere for gasoline, oil, tires, repairs, food, clothing and amusements, it did not take some of the local chambers long to decide that the towns that provided most for the comfort and convenience of their transient guests were bound to secure the greatest volume of their trade.

Idea Spreads Amazingly.

Once started, the idea spread with amazing rapidity, and it was not long before those interested beheld the illuminating spectacle of town vieing with town and city with city in a determined effort to provide the best possible accommodations on the theory that well-equipped camp sites would induce a certain number of motorists to tarry awhile to enjoy them. Scattered throughout the vast region west of the Mississippi river are thousands of small towns which could not possibly support a first-class hotel and maintain it as a paying investment, but which are, nevertheless, able to provide suitable camping grounds and thus make a strong bid for their share of the tourist patronage that formerly escaped them altogether.

The fundamentals of any camp site are a well-shaded plot of high and level ground, properly drained, several acres in size, with pure water and firewood close at hand and also some form of outdoor oven or grate to make cooking as simple and convenient as possible. Little more than this was provided in the earliest camps, but as time went on and competition between the various communities became keener the list of conveniences became more voluminous. Buildings were erected to serve as rest rooms and for shelter during storms, general stores and laundries were installed in many places, cooking was simplified through the use of cook stoves, gas plates and even electric stoves, cleanliness was encouraged through the installation of running water, bath tubs, shower baths and swimming pools, health was insured by the erection of tent floors, toilets and incinerators for garbage and refuse, police and electric lights were provided for safety's sake, while many of the comforts and even luxuries of home life were approximated as far as possible by providing telephones, electric irons, wash machines, tables and benches, dining pavilions, filling stations, accessory stores, information booths and free road maps.

Gather Much Information.

Several months ago the demand for information relative to the location and equipment of municipal and other camping grounds became so pronounced that the American Automobile association decided to gather information concerning them. This organization sent out a veritable flood of questionnaires to automobile clubs, chambers of commerce, highway associations and other similar bodies requesting full details concerning the location and facilities provided at the various camp sites in all sections of the country. Very recently the results of this investigation were published in the form of a 100-page booklet entitled the "Official Camping and Camp Site Manual," which contains not only a useful summary of the fundamentals of motor camping, but also a complete description of more than 1,000 camp sites.

A perusal of this exhaustive analysis shows a great many interesting things not previously known. For instance, the state of California leads all others in the number of its camping places with a total of 155. Montana is a poor second, having only 72, while South Dakota follows closely with 69. Fourth in the list is Washington with 46 camp sites; then comes Oregon. This latter state contains 40 camping grounds, exceeding by two only the quotas of both Minnesota and North Dakota, and by four that of Michigan. No camp sites whatever are reported for several of the states, such as Arkansas, Delaware, Maryland, Mississippi, South Carolina and West Virginia, though steps are being taken to organize some in preparation for the 1922 touring season.

Conveniently Distributed.

When considering the distribution of camping grounds the feature which will probably be of most value to the average tourist is that relating to their frequency along the main lines of interstate traffic. Those transcontinental highways that seem to have progressed furthest in this respect are the Yellowstone trail, the National Parks highway and the Pike's Peak, Ocean-to-Ocean highway. These three important routes are practically on a par one with another, because each of them now possesses almost an even 100 camp sites. Moreover, the average distance between these sites is only about 25 or 30 miles, thus insuring satisfactory camping privileges at frequent intervals practically all the way from the Mississippi river to the Pacific coast. Although not strictly speaking a transcontinental route, the Custer Battlefield highway is, nevertheless, worthy of mention in this connection, inasmuch as it possesses no less than 82 camp sites, located at very short intervals along a route that extends only from Omaha to Glacier National park. Among the main north and south highways the leaders in this respect are the Pacific highway and the Jefferson highway, with 61 and 60 camp sites respectively; then comes the Meridian highway with 46. The National Park-to-Park highway, which, as its name implies, is a circuit tour comprising practically all of the national parks, is likewise liberally supplied with camping grounds.

West Is Best Provided.

All these figures are illuminating, but without doubt the most striking result of the entire investigation lies in the demonstration that more than 90 per cent of the existing camp sites are located west of the Mississippi river. In other words, it is evident at a glance that what has come to be regarded as a well established institution in the West is almost an unknown quantity in the eastern states. To those motorists who have fallen into the habit of expecting to find camping accommodations almost everywhere throughout the western part of the country it will come as a distinct shock to learn that such populous and wealthy states as New York, Massachusetts and New Jersey are practically devoid of organized camping grounds at the present time. An exhaustive investigation discloses the surprising fact that in all New England there are but 35 municipal and private camp sites, of which 21 of them are in Connecticut. New Jersey is even worse off in this respect, with only one, while New York is in much the same category so far as municipal camping grounds are concerned, but fortunately for those who tour through the state reservations in the Adirondacks and the Catskills, the New York state conservation commission has recognized the necessity for providing camping facilities in these semi-public preserves and has accordingly installed fireplaces to the total of 56 in the Adirondacks and 12 in the Catskills.

From the above it is obvious that westerners who tour through the East this coming summer must be prepared in advance to expect a dearth of camping places, at least the kind to which they have become accustomed in their travels throughout the West. In most cases they will be forced to find their own camping places intead of relying on those which have been prepared in advance for their reception. To the average camper this will not be any real hardship, only an annoyance, but the lack of facilities of this kind is bound to have a reaction by tending to discourage motoring through the East by those who have already become confirmed campers. Obviously the remedy is to establish many more camp sites just as rapidly as possible, and there is no doubt that automobile clubs and chambers of commerce in the eastern states will sooner or later realize the necessity that now exists and take steps to provide the needed camping facilities.

SNAIL IS SLOW TRAVELER

It Took One 16 Days to Cover One Mile, According to Observers.

What do you suppose is the actual speed made by a snail in traveling? One foot in four minutes, or at the rate of one mile in 16 days, if traveling continuously.

These are figures given by George Zahnizer, a civil engineer of Newcastle, O., taken from actual observation.

A short time since Zahnizer was standing along the Western New York and Pennsylvania railroad waiting for a train. He had nothing in particular to do and "killed a little time" by timing a snail which was creeping along the ground.

That snail traveled just exactly one foot in four minutes, Mr. Zahnizer says, and compiling distance at the rate of travel shown, Mr. Zahnizer has figured out that it would require sixteen days for that snail to move a mile.

BIRD DOESN'T HAVE TO FLY

Washington Specimen Uses the Street Car as His Particular Means of Transportation.

Now that spring is here, it may interest bird lovers to know that at least one bird has solved the problem of transportation without the use of wings.

Birds are famous for their migrations, but hitherto they always have used wing power. Now comes along one local bird who gets himself from place to place with scarcely the flap of a wing.

This bird came riding down Pennsylvania avenue about eleven o'clock one morning last week. He was perched on the roof of a street car coming from Georgetown.

When the car stopped at Eleventh street the bird alighted, and walked gravely up and down the platform. He was a fine, big fellow, with a black body and a blue head, but did not look like a blackbird.

After surveying the post office department for a bit, the bird flew over to a car about to leave for Mount Vernon, and established himself on the roof.

When the car pulled out, the bird was with it.—Washington Star.

Wealth of the Nations.

An interesting study is to note the various methods in which men of different nationalities carry their wordly wealth. The Englishman usually carries silver and copper all loose in his trousers pocket, pulls out a handful of the mixture and selects the coin he needs. The American carries his wad of bills in a long narrow pocket-book, in which the greenbacks lie flat. The Frenchman makes use of a leather purse, with no distinguishing characteristics. The German uses one gaily embroidered in silks by the fair hands of some Gretchen. The half-civilized capitalist from some torrid South American city carries his dollars in a belt with cunningly-devised pockets to baffle the gentleman with very light fingers. The Italian of the poorer classes ties up his little fortune in a gaily-colored handkerchief secured with many knots, which he secretes in some mysterious manner about his clothes. A similar course has charms for the Spaniard, while the lower-class Russian exhibits a preference for his boots or the lining of his clothes as a hiding place for his savings.

YONKERS HAS THE CUCKOO

Citizen Complains That the Birds Are Somewhat Too Attentive to Business.

A proud but truthful resident of Yonkers admitted that there were a lot of cuckoos there. He wasn't proud of the cuckoos, particularly. As far as cuckoos are concerned, his pride is strictly civic. If one must have cuckoos, he prefers the Swiss kind, which are vocal only when wound up and then only at intervals.

The Yonkers cuckoo doesn't have to be wound up. The imported eight-day cuckoo is a piker beside the Yonkers cuckoo. The Yonkers cuckoo stays awake half the night waiting for the dawn and each has the same pride in being the first to salute the earliest gleam of the sky that a farmer's wife has in getting her washing out before a neighbor's line is strung.

From the moment that the night becomes faintly luminous until about 9:35 a. m. the air is tremulous with cuckoos. From 9:35 to 10:05, the cuckoos knock off for lunch. Then they're at it again until dark. They yelp "cuck-oo" at every resident of Yonkers they see and even at strangers from Peekskill. When the street is utterly deserted they murmur "cuck-oo, cuck-oo" just for practice.

PRESIDENT STARTS EAST BY MOTOR

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Columbus, O., July 7.—His vacation ended, President Harding had left Columbus this morning by motor for Washington, to resume his official duties and to try again to get the coal miners and operators, now deadlocked, to start producing coal in the face of an almost certain famine.

The first stop will be made at New Concord, Ohio, the seat of Muskingum College, where the president will remain just long enough to receive a degree from the institution. Then the party will resume the eastward journey in hopes of making Uniontown, Pa., for the night.

The size of the White House party was reduced here. General John J. Pershing left by motor for Washington ahead of the president, and Brigadier General and Mrs. Charles G. Dawes left for Chicago by train today.

Attorney General Daugerty will not return to Washington with the Hardings. He said he would return by train either today or tomorrow. He will be in Washington by the time the president arrives.

TAGGING THE BASES IN THE MAJOR LEAGUES

Babe Ruth's homer with the bases filled, was one of the shortest on record, barely falling inside the Polo Grounds stands at the right field foul line, the shortest barrier in the major leagues. Meantime, the Yanks made merry at the expense of the Indians, 10 to 4 and 11 to 3.

Ferdie Schupp, allowing three runs and six hits in five innings receives credit for winning the game in spite of the fact that Hodge, his successor, allowed only two runs and one hit in the next four innings. The answer is that the White Sox clubbed Heimach and Yarrison for five runs in the sixth before Hodge could make his official appearance.

The Giants took a fall out of the Pirates, 6 to 3, Nehf pitching Mr. Dreyfus's hired help dizzy with the exception of Max Carey. Max socked a double triple and homer but the rest of the outfit was good for exactly two hits.

Starting their western trip in a barrage of base-hits, the Dodgers lost to the Cardinals, 14 to 2, Reuther dropping his fourth game in eighteen starts. The Cards trifled with him to the extent of ten runs and thirteen hits in four and one third innings. Jeff Pfeffer and Joe Schultz revelled in the slaughter, both being Brooklyn discards. Jeff pitched winning ball and Joe scored four runs, made two doubles and two singles and stole a base.

EMIGRANT BALANCE IS 750,000 FOR GERMANY

Influx of 1,000,000 People as Result of World War Compared With Loss of 250,000.

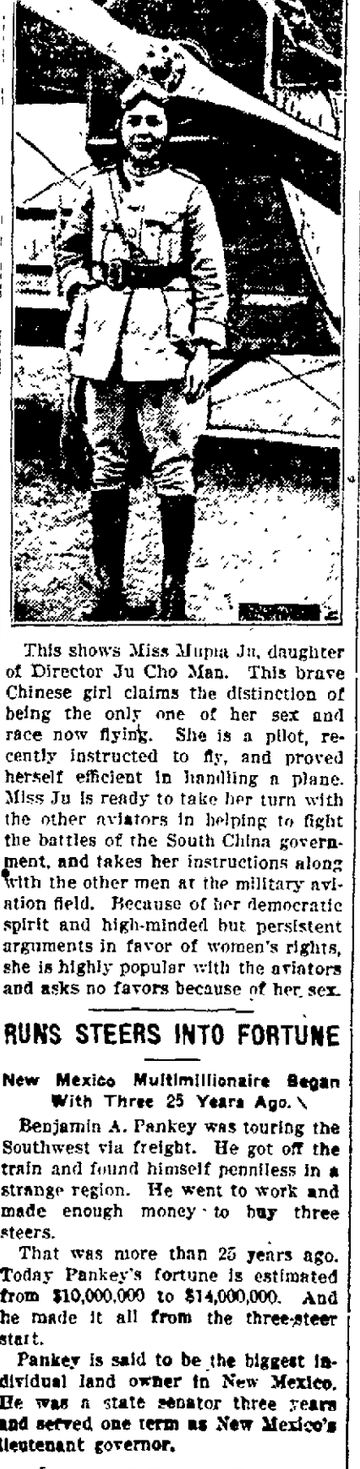
Through the rush of refugees from the East and the homecoming of a host of Germans from the lost colonies and amputated sections of the former German empire, the population of the territory of the present German republic was increased about 1,000,000 during the World war and, the two years immediately following it, according to a memorandum, issued by the German minister of the interior a month ago. As the emigration from Germany since the end of the war, according to recent estimates, has amounted to some 250,000, the net gain in population totals about 750,000.

The number of Germans who had returned from former German colonies and foreign lands up to the beginning of 1921 is put at 200,000, while those who left the provinces of Alsace and Lorraine following their return to France numbered 120,000. Considerable difficulty was experienced in estimating the number of those returning from the lost Prussian provinces in the East, but the German consulate in Posen said that about 500,000 persons had left the districts turned over to Poland, of whom half had gone to Germany in 1920. Only 1,066 Germans left the Eupen-Malmedy district following its cession to Belgium, and but 363 abandoned the part of North Slesvig that went to Denmark as the result of a plebiscite.

In addition to these German citizens a large number of Russians of German descent preferred the comparative security of life in the old Fatherland to the turbulent conditions obtaining in what was formerly the Russian empire and headed for Germany. Among these were about 100,000 German-Russians from southwest Russia and some 25,000 Balts from the new republics of Esthonia, Latvia and Lithuania. Of the Balts about 5,000 have returned to their old homes, while most of the German-Russians have found work on German farms.

Among what the Kolnische Zeitung's summary of the memorandum calls the "real foreigners" who came into Germany during the period under examination were, according to data furnished by the labor bureau of the Jewish organizations of Germany, about 100,000 Eastern Jews, of whom some 60,000 are estimated to have remained in the country. The movements of seasonal workers from foreign countries are not considered of importance by the compilers of the report.

IS READY TO FIGHT FOR SOUTH CHINA GOVERNMENT



This shows Miss Mupia Ju, daughter of Director Ju Cho Man. This brave Chinese girl claims the distinction of being the only one of her sex and race now flying. She is a pilot, recently instructed to fly, and proved herself efficient in handling a plane. Miss Ju is ready to take her turn with the other aviators in helping to fight the battles of the South China government, and takes her instructions along with the other men at the military aviation field. Because of her democratic spirit and high-minded but persistent arguments in favor of women's rights, she is highly popular with the aviators and asks no favors because of her sex.

RUNS STEERS INTO FORTUNE

New Mexico Multimillionaire Began With Three 25 Years Ago.

Benjamin A. Pankey was touring the Southwest via freight. He got off the train and found himself penniless in a strange region. He went to work and made enough money to buy three steers.

That was more than 25 years ago. Today Pankey's fortune is estimated from $10,000,000 to $14,000,000. And he made it all from the three-steer start.

Pankey is said to be the biggest individual land owner in New Mexico. He was a state senator three years and served one term as New Mexico's lieutenant governor.

To Remove a Splinter.

Sometimes a splinter gets under the nail so solidly that it is difficult to draw out. If a cold water bandage is put around the top of the finger and kept wet and cold it will in time loosen the splinter and minimize the danger of festering.

Read this Health Message at once! Know what Nature's Food can do for you!

Every man, woman and child addicted to pills and cathartics for constipation should know that Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, will give permanent relief naturally if they will eat it regularly! Pills and cathartics can never do more than give temporary relief, and at the same time they aggravate the delicate intestinal pathway and pave the way for graver disorders.

Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, is simply nature's food, and made delicious and appetizing by the Kellogg process. Eat it as a very appetizing cereal or sprinkle it on your favorite cereal or on other food. Your physician will indorse the consistent use of bran for constipation. We guarantee that Kellogg's Bran will give permanent relief to every sufferer from constipation if at least two tablespoonfuls are eaten each day. For chronic cases, eat as much as is necessary.

Kellogg's Bran sweeps and cleanses without discomfort. Its natural mechanical action is wonderful. Nine-tenths of all human ailments would be eliminated and there would be a new and better race of people if bran was universally eaten daily.

Kellogg's Bran can be used in many delightful foods such as bran bread, pancakes (the best you ever ate), macaroons, etc. See recipes on each package. Buy it at your grocer's.

P. S.—Kellogg's Bran will clear up a pimply complexion and free the breath from obnoxious intestinal odors!

LITTLE TALKS ON THRIFT

by S. W. STRAUS, President American Society for Thrift.

While economic conditions throughout the world are gradually becoming stabilized there is still much unrest, and it is well to bear in mind the important part thrift must play in the stabilizing processes of this post-war era.

It is natural that the man who owns a home, who possesses a savings account or who has the products of his thrift judiciously invested, should be an avowed supporter of the orderly forms of law and government. His every instinct is toward progress and upbuilding. He is against destructive tendencies because he recognizes in them a danger to his patiently obtained possessions. Therefore, his influence may be counted upon as a force against any trend of thought or movement that is contrary to the proper safeguarding of the prevailing social order.

The possession of savings investments [illegible] proprietary sentiments and awaken all the instincts for the preservation of property rights.

It also is to be borne in mind that the man who is thrifty is prosperous, for the real meaning of thrift is thriving. And the man who realizes that he is getting on in the world, that he has something back of him for the days of emergency and who sees his possessions, small though they may be, slowly increasing, is most apt to judge social and economic problems on a basis of fairness to all. His mental outlook is normal and healthy because his life is right. He is not biased in his views because he is under no undue pressure of any kind.

In all the efforts that are being made to bring about more settled conditions and get back to normal conditions, the very important part which must be assumed by thrift should not be overlooked. Anyone who is encouraging these practices is helping solve the grave problems of the world in a most practical manner.
